When the philosopher Heraclitus realized one day that there is no stability, only change, he sat down and cried with great disappointment.

We at Mary Washington College are in the midst of much change. We are not crying, however. In fact, we welcome change in our daily routine as a sign that we are thriving, growing and striving for excellence. Just as a pond will stagnate if no fresh water is introduced, Mary Washington College will lose its competitive edge without constant stimulation from the underground streams pouring new faces, new facilities and new ideas into the institution we have come to cherish.

In this issue alone, you will be introduced to many of the recent changes at MWC. A new academic computer will stimulate interest in the computer science program, which is expected to graduate 50 majors a year when it reaches full strength. New trees and shrubs have been carefully selected and planted throughout campus to add further to what is already one of the most beautiful college campuses in the state. Tom Leback, our landscape architect, has taken a personal approach to the project, moving or planting some 250 trees and shrubs during spring 1981 alone.

Many new faces greeted students and faculty upon their arrival in late August. The alumni board and college board of visitors both had newly elected or appointed members, and several new administrators were on hand, not only in the alumni office, but in the development office and the newly created media services office. These people come to MWC with many years of experience and the desire to join an already hard-working team to further shape the progress of liberal arts and sciences at MWC.

Something else new to the college appears on the front cover of this magazine and on the top of this page. Our new logo, a stylized version of the initials of the college, was designed to interpret the college's commitment to progress in providing the best education possible for its students. The forward-looking design is being used on college stationery, auto decals, gift items and publications to present a coordinated “MWC look.” We are all working together for the same result; now we will present a well-coordinated look to show our constituencies we mean business. The question, “Who is Mary Washington?” used for the past several years by our admissions staff in its recruiting materials may soon be irrelevant. The answer—a coeducational, residential, small, public college of liberal arts and sciences—will be evident.

One thing about Mary Washington College that has not, and will not, change is its name. After a year's debate and study, the faculty of the college voted April 24, in a unanimous decision, not to seek a change in the name of the college. Many interesting facts about the public image of Mary Washington were discovered during the study by the college's Committee on College Affairs, and ideas have already been put into effect to increase awareness of MWC. In a report by Executive Vice President William M. Anderson, Jr., the results of the year's study are outlined and suggestions for promoting the college are presented.

Maybe Heraclitus would crack a smile at that!

“In a bucolic but rigorous and tension-filled weekend, candidates for White House Fellows are passed or flunked by high-level judges.”

Q. What makes you angry?

A. Who says I'm angry? I'm not angry.

Q. What I'm trying to get at is, what makes you tick?

A. Well, I'm not ticking either. But I get what you mean . . .

Q. Assume you're at work on the job. Your assignment right now is to draft a speech the President has to make before a Jewish group, defending the plane sales to the Arabs. How do you go about it?

A. Um. Well, I start by swallowing hard. And then . . .”

—From an article on White House Fellows, Smithsonian Magazine, 1978.

Initiative, confidence, interest in how government works and potential for achievement and leadership are all qualities of White House Fellows. The program was begun in 1964 by President Lyndon B. Johnson to educate future leaders in the workings of government.

The White House Fellows Program has “given me a different perspective. As an urbanized person from Alexandria, I have seen the concerns of those from rural areas and also have been working on an international level,” commented MWC graduate Jane Bradley, one of 17 1980-81 White House Fellows.

Interviewed near the end of her one-year tenure in a fourth-floor room at the Office of the U.S. Trade Representative, Ms. Bradley said the experience of being a White House Fellow has changed her perceptions of government. Since White House Fellows work in high-level positions with a member of the President's cabinet, she has seen the tremendous time demands placed upon a cabinet member. “There are breakfast meetings, speeches to international groups, meetings with members of Congress, other cabinet members and the internal staff,” she described.

Her own schedule the past year, which ended in late August, was not dissimilar. The 17 White House Fellows, she said, not only work in a particular job, but get together several times per week for meetings with various speakers on issues of national concern. Before a summer trip to Latin America, where White House Fellows learned about foreign policy, business and politics, they met with the vice president and the secretary of defense for a question and answer session. Breakfast, lunch and dinner are often settings for meetings.

"Our meetings are with cabinet members, heads of state, journalists and members of academia," she said. The educational part of the program was designed to complement the fellow's full-time assignment.

Although the selection process is considered tough, Ms. Bradley cautioned that it is highly competitive, but not overly grueling. "I would advise anyone to apply," she said. She applied herself after becoming a partner in the law firm of Cohen and Annand in Alexandria, because "growing up around D.C., I enjoyed having a national focus, and I thought it would be interesting after eight years to put myself in a different role involving policy making and decision making."

Her earlier initiative and ability to try new things led her to become involved in human rights issues in Alexandria, and she was appointed Human Rights Commissioner for the city. "I found I enjoyed the managerial role," and that eventually led her to establish a non-profit corporation to manage a law library.

Looking not much different than she did as a Mary Washington College student, Ms. Bradley emphasized the importance of group dynamics among the White House Fellows. In the 16 classes of fellows there have been lawyers, physicians, academicians, business men and women, engineers, career military, journalists, farmers, a policeman, an orchestra conductor, former state legislators and priests—all of them early in their careers. All have shown potential for contributing to their communities—geographic or professional.

After her selection Ms. Bradley had input into what her assignment would be. "I wanted to do something completely different and to learn about a sector of the economy that I had no experience in," she decided. "I also wanted a department flexible enough to allow me to assume an important role."

She chose the Department of Agriculture and worked the first several months on food and nutrition and food safety issues. She organized a conference for farm women and helped them organize themselves to solve mutual problems.

After the Reagan administration entered the picture, she worked on a system for reviewing Department of Agriculture regulations and became interested in food on a global level.

A transfer was arranged to the office of the U.S. Trade Representative, where she has been working on international food issues, especially imports and exports of food items. The office is headed by the U.S. Trade Representative, William Brock, who holds a Cabinet-level position with the title of Ambassador. The office is an agency of the Executive Office of the President, and is charged with administering the trade agreements program, setting trade policy and performing other activities associated with international trade.

In this office Ms. Bradley says she has used both her legal training and her background in government (she received a master's in government from George Washington University in 1971.)

The year as a fellow "is long enough to have exposure to a variety of things, yet short enough that you still enjoy them and find the activity richly rewarding," she reflected.

She mentioned there are many experiences she would never have had otherwise—for instance the trip to Latin America and another to New York City, where she and other fellows met David Rockefeller and Mayor Koch, spent half a day at Exxon headquarters and watched ABC news put together an evening program. When the year was over, she and other fellows planned a trip on their own to China, where they would extend their educational horizons even further.

Ms. Bradley would not let her interviewer leave without promising to include information on how to apply to the program. About 1500-2000 people apply for 14-20 fellowships each year, she said. She strongly encourages anyone interested to apply. "There are no set criteria," she emphasized. Eleven regional panels and the current fellows screen applications and 110 people are chosen. The regional panels interview 10 people each and select three who spend a three-day weekend in intensive interviews with the President's Commission on White House Fellowships. At the end of the weekend, envelopes are passed out, informing each candidate of his or her outcome.

More information and application forms for White House Fellowships can be obtained by writing the President's Commission on White House Fellowships, 712 Jackson Place, N.W., Washington, D.C. (202/395-4522).

Getting In— Who Comes to MWC?

By Michael W. Boyd

Over the past several years MWC has quietly created a winning tradition of broadened appeal among high school seniors. The result has been steadily increasing numbers of applicants each year. This year, however, was a banner one as MWC attracted nearly 40 per cent more applicants than the previous year, giving it the highest percentage increase of any state-supported college or university in Virginia.

Applications increased in every category, but for a school in the process of changing its image, it was gratifying that male and minority applications showed the greatest percentage gains. In general, the quantum leap in applications this year gave those of us in admissions the feeling that not only were we doing the right thing and doing it often, but, more significantly, that the staff worked well together as a team.

Specifically, increased applicants meant that the Admissions Committee could be more selective in accepting students than in the past. In fact, while we offered admission to 81 per cent of our freshmen applicants in 1980, this year we accepted only 58 per cent of them. Increased selectivity resulted in moderate gains in average verbal and math SAT scores for this year's incoming freshmen as compared to their predecessors. In addition, almost two-thirds of this year's class will be from the top fifth of their high school graduating classes. This year is certainly one instance in which quantity is directly related to academic quality.

When asked to explain the staggering increase in applications, Assistant Dean of Admissions Sallie Washington said, "There are a lot of reasons—increased travel, additional staff—but cost, particularly out-of-state, still remains a big factor." Given the present inflationary state of the economy and skyrocketing private institution costs, MWC remains an educational bargain offering academic quality at a reasonable price.

In truth, however, there are as many explanations for our success as there are employees in the admissions office—each one correct to a point.

The addition of two admissions counselors, MWC graduates Lisa Kelly and Vicky Nichols, was without a doubt a big factor in this year's success. Their mere presence on the staff enabled us to broaden travel horizons and multiply student and guidance counselor contacts beyond what we had done in the past. With peer and counselor advice being the two dominant sources of influence on students making application to MWC, Lisa and Vicky's contributions cannot be overestimated. Above all, though, their personal warmth and genuine enthusiasm for their alma mater were like a tonic, affecting co-workers and prospective students alike.

In recruiting students, one learns quickly that the first contact with a prospect does not always produce the desired result. In fact, persistent attention resulting in several contacts is often the key to success. The close cooperation of alumni, members of the admissions club, faculty and coaches made this kind of consistent effort a reality. Bolstering these personal contacts were attractive new publications covering many areas of student life at MWC and an increase in the number of student search letters mailed.

Another factor, particularly with regard to our 50 per cent increase in male applications, has been the recent addition of new majors in business administration and computer science. Although these two opportunity-oriented fields are attractive to many students, they were far and away the ones most often mentioned by our male applicants as areas of academic interest.

Essentially, each one of the factors had its share of influence in attracting new students to MWC. Yet, in order to mold an effective recruiting system, a college needs staff members whose personal pride never allows them to give less than their best. It needs an atmosphere which encourages the worth of each staff member's opinion and, thus, the free flow of new ideas. Above all it needs a director who will listen to new ideas, be discriminating in judgment and have the management skills to coordinate numerous recruiting activities.

"Certainly we are delighted with what has been accomplished. It has just been a super year for us," commented H. Conrad Warlick, dean of admissions and financial aid. "However, we are faced with the challenge of declining numbers of high school graduates in the 80s. This will mean stiff competition among colleges to maintain or increase their applicant pools. In order to meet this challenge, the College will need the same team effort from faculty, students, administrators and admissions representatives that we had this year."

Specifically, the admissions office will be expanding and refining its efforts in many areas to maintain the trend of the last several years. In the area of cost, next year's fees for in and out-of-state students will only increase 9 per cent and 7 per cent respectively. No one can afford to underestimate the influence of cost in selecting an institute of higher learning in the 1980s.

Next year recruiting will not only expand, but become more visually oriented due to a reorganization of the college administration that provides expanded opportunities in public relations. Directors of the Office of Publications and the Office of Media Services will assist us in sharpening and communicating MWC's new image in our recruiting areas. Members of the incoming freshman class often indicate that experiencing the lovely landscape and small, quiet atmosphere of our campus was a deciding factor in matriculating at MWC. With this in mind, there will be for the first time a color picture on the cover of our search publication, many more photographs in our prospectus and a colorful MWC poster to display on the walls of guidance offices from Boston to Miami.

In order to intensify personal contact with guidance counselors and high school students, several innovations are scheduled for the 1981-82 year. We will invite counselors from Northern Virginia to attend a conference on campus this fall, and counselor luncheons are planned throughout the year in selected Virginia metropolitan areas. We will again employ two admissions counselors for our fall recruiting, Julia Dyer and Pat Thompson, both MWC graduates.

Martin Wilder, associate dean of admissions, has organized a student recruitment committee to expand our student-to-student contacts. In addition to increasing Black student search from 800 to more than 1,000 letters, Assistant Dean Sallie Washington has also organized a minority student weekend. Thirty-five academically promising minority students from high schools in Virginia will be identified through Black student search and counselor recommendations and invited to experience MWC firsthand.

As Dean Warlick has suggested, it will not be easy to achieve the same success this coming year as we had this year. However, with a continuing ability to offer quality education at a reasonable price and a coordinated program of travel, public relations and personal contact with counselors and prospective students, we intend not only to maintain our momentum but also to increase it.

Tom Leback— A “Budding” Architect

By Carlton R. Lutterbie, Jr.

Tom Leback

The schoolbook image of “Johnny Appleseed” Chapman, strewing his apple seeds in a broad, indiscriminate arc as he strides over the valleys of Ohio, may appease America’s sense of freedom, spaciousness and abundance, but it’s no way to grow apples. If one cares at all about the quality of the fruit or the appearance of the orchard, a certain amount of planning is necessary.

It is this planning—though not only for apple trees—that goes on in Warren “Tom” Leback’s office in the MWC Physical Plant. Dubbed Landscape Superintendent, Leback is actually a landscape architect charged with the design and maintenance of Mary Washington’s grounds.

Since his arrival here in October 1979, he has designed a number of major landscaping projects, including plantings around duPont and Goolrick halls, along College Avenue, and on the Battleground—the new athletic complex on the site of the old golf course. During spring 1981 alone, some 250 trees and shrubs were planted or moved on campus. And as one can judge from Leback’s office—monopolized by large drawing boards, map files and walls hung with scale drawings of various landscaping projects—the plantings were anything but arbitrary.

In fact, many considerations enter into landscape design. Tree plantings, for example, must enhance, not mar, the appearance of the buildings. “This was a chief concern in landscaping around duPont Hall,” says Leback. “Trees were planted so they would not obstruct but rather draw attention to the porticos and the curved colonnades of duPont, Melchers, and Polard. This necessitated, of course, knowing what the trees will look like in 20 or 30 years.”

In landscaping duPont and Goolrick, Leback also wished to tie those buildings to the rest of the campus. “All the other buildings on campus face in,” he points out, “or they have double entrances like Russell and Monroe halls. Goolrick and duPont, by facing College Avenue, are the only buildings that seem to turn their backs on the campus.” To alleviate this sense of separation, Leback planted large shade trees to duplicate the lush, canopied atmosphere of the rest of the College and balanced tree plantings against open spaces, again following the precedent already established on campus.

Existing vegetation must also be taken into account, says Leback, so that new plantings blend easily with the old. As he landscaped the area around the tennis courts and the parking lot on the Battleground, for instance, Leback noted the columnar cedars and the lower, rounded hackberry trees already in existence. To complement these trees in size and shape, yet offer variation, Leback planted tall, dominant willow oaks and smaller, rounded Japanese pagoda trees and yellowwoods. "Diversity is important," Leback explains, "but you need to follow the established pattern, too, or you'll have aesthetic anarchy. You need to find the fine line between monotony and chaos."

Besides arranging plantings to complement the area, Leback must consider maintenance in his selection both of trees and planting sites. While he enjoys experimenting with new varieties of plants and trees, Leback must usually give priority to the harder ones—those requiring little moisture and little maintenance. And it was to avoid future maintenance problems that evergreens are to be planted alongside the tennis courts and the deciduous trees kept on the periphery of the Battleground.

Invariably, cost figures in, too, as illustrated by another of Leback's landscaping tasks—maintaining the signs identifying the buildings on campus. When the signs were originally erected in 1975-76, they were of fiberglass, had to be ordered well in advance, and, since they proved tempting targets for thieves and vandals, were costly to replace. The new signs are wooden, will last three-to-five years, and can be made on campus in a matter of weeks and at a fraction of the cost of the earlier signs.

Occasionally sheer beauty is a factor in a landscaping decision, as in the selection of Green Mountain sugar maples—renowned for their spectacular autumn foliage—to border College Avenue. At other times, neighboring homes become considerations, as in the planting of low, flowering trees along the tennis court parking lot so that the glare from the lighted courts would not disturb Hanover Street residents after dark.

And, unlike many landscaping jobs, Leback's must often reckon with historical fidelity. In replacing trees and shrubs around Brompton, Leback pulled old photos and descriptions of the mansion from the E. Lee Trinkle archives in an effort to preserve the historical appearance of the house and lawn. To be sure, the open field that fronted Brompton in Civil War days is now a well-kept lawn, but Leback has maintained the openness by not planting shrubbery that would obstruct the view of Brompton from Sunken Road. In other historical endeavors, Leback conducts an on-going inventory of the Brompton flora and is a member of the College Advisory Council for the Center for Historic Preservation.

Choosing a career pioneered by Frederick Law Olmsted (1822-1903), designer of New York's Central Park, Leback received his master's in landscape architecture from the University of Virginia, having earlier majored in anthropology as an undergraduate at William and Mary. His first job was in the landscape department of The Architects' Collaborative in Cambridge, Mass., where he participated in the design of a variety of international projects. He then spent three years at the University of Virginia as a campus planner, also teaching a graduate course in the architectural school there.

At Mary Washington, however, Leback finds a quality missing from his previous jobs, namely the opportunity to follow a project through all of its stages from conception to completion to maintenance. He not only designs, but also maintains the project. As he puts it, "Something in my basic nature says that to be a good landscape architect one must see a project through from start to finish. It's the only way to know which ideas worked and which ones didn't."

The diversity of landscapes at Mary

Washington—athletic fields, wooded areas, an orchard, a rose garden—also appeals to Leback, as does the detail of the work, such as watching closely for boxwood infestation or keeping track of daily rainfall and temperature highs and lows.

Leback values, too, the new experience with landscape maintenance, which occupies much of his time and that of his 17-person staff, which he praises highly: "Good supervisors, good crewmen and teamwork are essential to a well-maintained campus, and we have them all here at Mary Washington." With crews for grass-cutting, pruning, trash collection, special projects, and care of the athletic fields and the Brompton grounds, and with winter tasks including snow removal, equipment servicing, pruning and fertilizing, there are no slack times for maintenance.

Perhaps the most publicized maintenance problem Leback's team faces is that of competing with the path-makers on campus. Leback naturally supports President Woodard's "Save the Grass" campaigns and sees no solution to the problem short of cooperation from the college community. "The only school I know that doesn't have this problem," Leback notes, "is the new campus of Gallaudet College in D.C. They simply made the whole campus concrete and confined all greenery to planters. Hardly a desirable alternative for Mary Washington."

Just as paths will keep appearing, so will other projects keep springing up for Tom Leback and his crews. Already new plantings are scheduled, new signs are being designed for the Battleground, and major landscaping is planned around Virginia, Willard and Monroe halls. The demands of nature set a rigorous pace for Leback and his staff. One might reshape, renew and rearrange nature, but one can't repudiate it.

C. S. Lewis—The Art of Enchantment

By Donald E. Glover

Donald Glover

Editor's Note: Donald E. Glover, professor of English and director of graduate studies at MWC, describes his fascination with the writings of C. S. Lewis and tells us why he was inspired to write his recently-published book about this versatile and engaging author. The following excerpt is from the introduction to his book.

The beginning of this book was a simple question that kept coming back to me as I read and reread the works of fiction which make up the body of C. S. Lewis's contribution to literature. Why do so many people continue to read Lewis? The answer seemed obvious and simple: they enjoyed what they found in Lewis. The books were engaging and always logical in the way they built up a story. They were just good.

I could not, as an English professor, really stop there. So I began to investigate what other readers had to say in books and articles on Lewis. What I found them saying went much deeper than my initial response. Many found Lewis an exciting writer because he was able to say religious things in an essentially nonreligious way, or, in more scholarly jargon, Lewis was a Christian allegorist and apologist. These critics saw Lewis as a Christian convert turned from his early interest in secular subjects like medieval chivalric romance and northern myth to the great subjects of Christian belief: the Incarnation, the Sacrifice, the Resurrection and the Redemption.

I agreed wholeheartedly with this view of Lewis, but I was troubled by the feeling or suspicion that, in my case at least, this reasonable view of Lewis's importance did not really cover all I saw and responded to in his fiction. The further I went, the less satisfied I felt with the explanations offered by friend and foe alike. Lewis, some said, was a contemporary phenomenon, the answer to a felt need in a society where the gap between the church and the people had widened to nearly unbridgeable proportions. Others claimed him to be a cult figurehead for a small and rather elite group of academic, intellectual critics. One of his former students thought he was silly and his works juvenile. Those who admired Lewis most extravagantly were impressed by his logic and practicality, as well as his irony, wit and creativity. Some critics found him timely; others found him timeless. Lewis was a realist, an idealist, a utopian, a mythmaker, a myth-borrower.

As I went further, I found critics squabbling over whether Lewis was better on the imaginative or the informational side of his works. Few seemed to find that he made both the form and the content work in harness. Only a few critics found the books compellingly readable, as I did, offering me more meaning than that found in the explicit content. To my dismay, I began to find some of these critics, reputable critics, did not share my enthusiasm. They spoke of Lewis's metallic tone, his smugness, his carelessness.

When I went back to the classroom, where I had begun to teach Lewis's work, I encountered a different sort of response. My students are not uncritical, and over the years they have taught me not to trust all published critics or even my own cherished literary opinions too rigidly. They reinforced my original feeling that Lewis is read and reread because he is a supremely good writer of fiction. They consistently replied, when asked why they ranked The Lion, The Witch and the Wardrobe so high on their list of favored fantasies, that it was "one of the best." However, when we together tried to analyze what they meant, we came back to items like good plot, believable characters, fast action, and that still undefined and seemingly undefinable feeling Lewis left with them and that they returned to recapture time after time.

This book is an attempt to define the origin of that feeling and to explain how Lewis's fiction creates such a response in his rapidly growing audience. I began by looking at what Lewis himself had to say about his own words and found that he was not as helpful as I had hoped. In his letters about his own writing, he more often than not is deprecatory or depressed when he is troubled by a problem in moving a story ahead. I had to turn back to his earliest comments about how he perceived other writers and their works before I found any material that offered clues about his attitudes or critical standards in literary matters.

I found, as I read Lewis's letters to Arthur Greeves, begun in youth and continued until Lewis's death, just the sort of material which might lay the foundation for an analysis of Lewis's theory of literature. The letters were quite explicit about what Lewis admired and disliked in his wide and sometimes unorthodox reading. Talk about style, characterization and literary techniques formed the basis of letter after letter, stretching up to the point where Lewis himself became the author of The Pilgrim's Regress. There were other correspondents too, Sister Penelope and Joan Lancaster, Ruth Pitter and Katherine Farrer, to name only a few. Lewis began to show me, through his delightful and voluminous correspondence, that he had thought, analyzed and responded to fiction from an early age and had provided a quarry for a study of this sort.

The next step was to look beyond the letters in order to find out what Lewis had to say about the subject of writing or reading fiction in his lectures and essays. Since he did not often review other writers' work in a formal way, most of his comments on the subject were general, and they were widely scattered through time and in essays and lectures on such diverse subjects as psychoanalysis, anthropology and children's stories. What emerged as I pursued this side of Lewis's approach to literature was a consistent set of principles which form his literary theory. I learned that he valued his readers' accessibility to new ideas, that he felt his readers were better judges of the value of a literary work than critics and that his chief delight as a reader himself and then as an author was the compelling suggestiveness of a finely crafted story.

Lewis makes us feel good to be readers. For him, the reader is the most important element next to what is read. His readers, ideally, are individuals with individual needs and diverse backgrounds. Their one common denominator is a willingness to open themselves to new feelings and ideas. He lays considerable importance on a reader's feeling for a book, his receptivity and his acceptance of what he reads regardless of how the book might be assumed to be of use.

The further in I went toward what Lewis himself found valuable in the experience of reading, the more I became aware that he insisted upon a message which would bring the reader closer to the truth. He even seemed to suggest that an author's indirect approach to the message might work best because it would slide past the reader's inhibitions and prejudices and catch him unaware. At the time I first encountered this idea, it seemed a bit subversive for a Christian writer but not for a novelist.

As I moved into an examination of the books, what I had learned from the letters and the lectures came into play as I judged what Lewis was attempting to do and was accomplishing. His works showed a conscious sense of craftsmanship which was manipulated to provide a vehicle for messages which were myth-like in their intent and scope. Lewis merged theme and form in an organic unity which would have made Whitman and Coleridge proud.

There is a skill required to link the form and content and make them so support and reinforce each other that readers scarcely realize that Lewis is consciously manipulating each to produce an effect. Lewis obscures what he is doing by saying that he picks a particular form, say for example, the children's fantasy tale, because it best suits what he wants to say. A closer look shows that he consciously chooses and selects, molds and develops both the forms and the messages to produce a final effect upon his readers which is satisfying and deceptively simple.

So now I knew what I wanted to do in this book. I wanted to clear a way for readers of Lewis through the tangle of an increasing body of criticism, to satisfy their curiosity about why we read Lewis in the first place and why we return to him again and again. There is no mystery involved. It is not just a matter of popular appeal or relevance. Quite simply, it is a matter of skill, the craftsman shaping a body of work, learning by practice and experiment what techniques are useful and rejecting those which are not. Lewis grows as a writer as well as growing on the reader.

It is fascinating to watch Lewis develop from a young aesthete who worries over his own sensuousness into a reborn Christian who recognizes the place those feelings have in his new life. For us, that early shift in vision is only the beginning of Lewis's story as a writer of fiction because he makes that new understanding the basis of his theory of literature and the keystone of his literary edifice. Thus a good book invites us to experience its depths by making us feel and absorb its message. It invites us to indulge our senses, recalling to our memories joys or sorrows out of the past. Building on these remembrances, the story, carefully structured and developed, opens for us a new way of seeing because it draws us out of our shells, and we transcend our littleness and become something more than we were. The fusion of feeling and thought produces an "other worldly" experience in which we are open to a message, receptive to what the author will tell us. When we leave the book and return, our shell should be a little bigger, a bit less confining. That is the feeling Lewis gives us; it is the feeling he sought when he read; it is the answer to my initial question of why people continue to read Lewis.

Report of Committee On College Affairs

By William M. Anderson, Jr.

Originally presented to the College Faculty, spring 1981 and accepted by unanimous vote.

The Committee on College Affairs has completed its study of the question, "Should the name of the College be changed?" It has taken the entire academic year to complete the study; however, the committee was convinced that this complex question was important enough to warrant very careful investigation.

Serving on the committee this year along with me were Jean C. Graham, Joanne G. Southworth, Ruby Y. Weinbrecht, Bulent I. Atalay, A. Ray Merchant, Lynn Beaver, Kellie Burns and Jeannine Goodenough (the last three being students).

After several initial meetings, the committee determined that there are at least three broad reasons for changing an institution's name. These are:

- Because of a change in the governance or affiliation of an institution,
- Because of a major endowment bestowed on an institution, or
- Because of a significant shift in the mission or programmatic goals of an institution.

The committee decided that the study should concentrate only on the third reason for a name change, since the first two did not appear as factors at this time.

In reviewing the third reason, the committee further defined the question to be studied. There appeared to be no significant programmatic changes at this time that would warrant consideration of a change from college to university status. After eliminating other considerations, the committee decided to focus on the question, "Is the name Mary Washington College supportive of, consistent with and appropriate for the coeducational thrust of the College?" The question was not limited to the recruitment of males, but more importantly, to the recruitment of quality students, both male and female, desiring to attend a coeducational college. The committee was aware also that the question had even more importance for the future of the College, a time when there is projected to be a significant decrease in the number of college-bound students.

The committee conducted open hearings with both faculty and students. Important information was obtained at those hearings, with the majority of it in support of the existing name of the College. Visits to college night programs in the Richmond and Tidewater areas provided the committee with additional observations. Some were:

1. The competition among colleges is tough and getting tougher.
2. When randomly questioned, many students were not familiar with the College.

The committee was extremely impressed with the admissions counselors representing Mary Washington College. Their enthusiastic delivery of the MWC message was simply amazing, especially when one considered that the same presentation was presented six to seven times each day by the same person. The committee believes from its observations that the College's admissions staff does a superior job. The committee later met with the admissions staff to review these observations and other questions.

A questionnaire was then designed to obtain information from college-bound high school students in the Northern Virginia, Richmond and Tidewater areas of the state about their perceptions of the College. After field testing the questionnaire, it was distributed to approximately 1200 students. The information obtained from this portion of the study was most important.

The current image of the College held by the female students who indicated that they planned to attend college and had a "B" average or better is that MWC is: Public, Coeducational, Inexpensive, Small, Easy to Enter, Average Academic Reputation, Average Social Environment and Average Sports Program. Fifty per cent of these female students indicated that they did not know about MWC.

The current image of the College held by the male students who indicated that they planned to attend college and had a "B" average or better is that MWC is: Private, Coeducational, Expensive, Small, Easy to Enter, Average Academic Reputation, Average Social Environment and Poor Sports Environment. More important is the fact that 79 per cent of the sophomores, 74 per cent of the juniors and 72 per cent of the senior male students indicated that they did not know about the institution.

The study also pointed out that sophomores knew less about the College than juniors, and juniors less than seniors. It seems clear that a significant information void exists and that much improvement can be made. This situation is not unique to MWC.

After reviewing the history of the coeducational movement of the College, these findings did not seem surprising. In 1970, the College dropped all regulations barring admission of men; however, males were not included in the student search program until 1975. The male sports program only began to develop fully after 1976.

Although the College became legally coeducational in 1970, it has moved aggressively in this direction during the last few years. To achieve this objective fully, much remains to be done. With the pool of college-bound students decreasing, the recruitment of quality students will be much tougher in the future. Much progress has already been made. For example, the number of freshman applications received already this year is higher than at any time during the past 12 years. (See related article on admissions.)

While the present looks bright, the committee urges the faculty, staff, students and alumni to become active partners in helping to correct the image vacuum that exists with high school students. The committee suggests that the following actions should be considered:

- Every faculty member should help promote the image of the College by participating in a high school speakers bureau.
- The College should offer summer academic camps designed to attract the best sophomore and junior high school students.
- The College should develop its news dissemination and public relations efforts more aggressively.
- The College should consider recasting the College seal.
- The College should expand its efforts to engage students to help promote the College.
- Alumni must be educated constantly about the College as it is today, and made aware of the need to promote its current image.

These are just a few of the things that could be done, but, above all, if the College is to reach its potential, everyone will have to help.

The committee, therefore, recommends that the current name be retained at the present. Should someone desire to endow the College with such financial resources that would significantly enhance the academic quality of the institution, the committee recommends that the name change be considered. At the present time, however, the committee feels that although much room for improvement exists, the College is in a stronger position today than at any time during the past 10 years.

Notes From the MWC Center for Historic Preservation

During recent months the center has been active in acquiring materials which will enhance the academic program in Historic Preservation at the College and will, at the same time, benefit preservationists outside the College. Such materials include, in addition to numerous books and periodicals of significance, copies of the Frances Benjamin Johnston architectural photograph collection (from the Library of Congress) and the complete microfilm collection of Mutual Assurance Society Declarations (from the Virginia State Library). The center has also acquired photographic and laboratory equipment which will be of particular usefulness in preservation courses in architecture and archival techniques.

The center's Second Annual Conference on Historic Preservation, entitled "The Old House: Keeping It In Style," was held in late May and attracted over a hundred persons from throughout Virginia and beyond. The success of that meeting prompted the center to develop a series of lecture/workshops for fall, 1981 on a similar theme: "To Make Old Houses Homes." Consisting of seven sessions to be held fortnightly on alternate Saturday and Sunday afternoons, the series will attract to the campus leading experts in the field of old house preservation and restoration. The emphasis of the programs will be on providing practical, usable information about the proper care and furnishing of older houses.

In addition to its fall series, the center will be sponsoring a number of programs during the coming months which will be attractive to all alumni who are interested in various aspects of preservation. These include:

- A ten-lecture, non-credit course in Antique American Furniture taught on Wednesday evenings during the fall semester by Dr. Richard Palmieri, the College curator of furniture.
- A spring symposium on Historical Landscape Architecture, scheduled for May 26-27, 1982. The program will be sponsored jointly by the Center for Historic Preservation, the Kenmore Association, and the Garden Club of Virginia.
- The Third Annual MWC Conference on Historic Preservation, tentatively scheduled for June 10-12, 1982, on the topic of antique furnishings.

For more specific information on any of the center's activities, services and programs, alumni are urged to write the MWC Center for Historic Preservation, 915 Monroe Street at Sunken Road, Fredericksburg, Virginia 22401, or call the center at (703) 899-4037.

Board Members Appointed

Two people were appointed and another reappointed to the Mary Washington College Board of Visitors by Gov. John N. Dalton.

The new appointees are Sylvia McJilton Woodcock, an alumna of MWC and floral designer from Williamsburg, and John T. Tompkins III, an attorney from Newport News.

Benjamin H. Woodbridge of Fredericksburg, who had been appointed in 1980 to fill an unexpired term, was appointed to a full term on the board.

Mrs. Woodcock, who graduated from Mary Washington College in 1961, has served extensively in civic activities in Williamsburg and has volunteered many hours of time to the MWC Alumni Association, serving as its national president in 1979-80.

She has served on the Regional Scholarship Selection Committee and the Mary Washington College Foundation Board.

Tompkins is a partner in the firm Jones, Blechman, Woltz and Kelly in Newport News. He specializes in tax and corporate matters, estate planning and retirement plans.

A graduate of Hampden-Sydney College, he holds a bachelor of laws degree and a master of laws degree from the University of Virginia.

Woodcock and Tompkins replace Gwendolyn Cumming and J. Rupert Picott on the board.

Welcome to our new members.

Combs Hall—On Line

A second computer has been installed at MWC that allows the College to keep pace with one of its most popular new academic programs.

The new computer, a Prime 550 series 2 mini-computer with capacity for 48 terminals, has been installed in Combs Science Hall, while the first model, a Hewlett-Packard 3000, remains in the basement of George Washington Hall.

Ernest C. Ackerman, director of academic computer programs, said the new computer science major plus a strong growth in student and faculty interest in computer use for academic study necessitated acquisition of the new equipment.

The College purchased the computer for $171,000, a nominal price-tag in today's computer market.

According to Rebecca C. Bien, director of administrative computer services, nearly three-fourths of the time the HP 3000 was being used, it was for administrative matters, allowing little time for instructional and academic use. "There has been a tremendous demand for computer studies," Ackerman pointed out. This fall there are 10 sections of six different courses in computer instruction, he said, and they're all filled up.

Ackerman said he expects 25 to 30 students to declare majors in the field by the end of this year, and the figure may double next year. "The demand is here, and with this computer we'll be able to satisfy that demand," he said.

Association Accepts MWC Graduate Program

The Master of Arts in Liberal Studies program at Mary Washington College has been approved for membership in the Association of Graduate Liberal Studies Programs.

The association, conceived at Dartmouth College in 1974 and formalized at Hollins College in 1975, establishes standards of excellence for graduate liberal studies programs and serves as a promoter and coordinator of such programs. Following the association's meeting in Dallas last May, MWC joined some 50 colleges and universities with full membership.

The MALS, entering its second year this August, is MWC's first graduate program. It is designed to offer mature students an interdisciplinary liberal arts degree, combining six hours of required course work with a wide range of colloquia and electives.

The MALS is one of three graduate programs approved for MWC. A master's in business administration will be introduced in fall 1982 and a master's in public administration in fall 1983.

Advancing MWC

Robert Hilldrup

Organizational changes made this summer have provided MWC with expanded opportunities in the area of college advancement. An area that touches all aspects of the College from recruitment of students and generation of private donations to dissemination of information to the alumni and public, College advancement is becoming an increasingly important aspect of the administrative team.

To aid MWC's efforts in advancing and informing the public about the College, a media services office has been established. Directed by Robert P. Hilldrup, a former Richmond newspaperman and educational public relations administrator, it will concentrate efforts in increasing the awareness of MWC among the general public. Increased news articles about MWC are planned, along with greater exposure on radio and television.

A native of Fredericksburg, Hilldrup holds an A.B. degree in English from East Carolina University and a master's in educational administration from Virginia Commonwealth University.

Charles Repp

In the area of development, Dr. Charles A. Repp has joined MWC as director of development. A native of New Jersey, Repp came from the West Virginia School of Osteopathic Medicine, where he served as dean of planning and development. He will direct the College's fund raising activities and will develop a comprehensive fund-raising plan to include corporate and foundation relations and expanded alumni, parent and community-giving programs.

Repp completed his undergraduate education at Pfeiffer College and earned both master's and doctorate degrees at The American University.

An expanded effort to create quality publications will be headed by Linda N. Evans, formerly MWC's director of information services. With her new title, director of publications, she will concentrate efforts to expand and improve all publications originating at the College. This includes "MWC Today," which she has edited for nearly four years, as well as admissions publications and collateral materials for other advancement projects. Internal communications will be expanded with the introduction of a faculty/staff newsletter, and greater emphasis will be placed on creating coordinated College publications.

MWC Faculty Coming, Going and Doing

Raman K. Singh, professor of English, was awarded a Fulbright Lectureship to teach during 1981-82 in Indonesia. He is teaching American Literature at Gadjah Mada University in the city of Jog Gakarta, the cultural center of the island of Java. A native of India and member of the MWC faculty since 1967, Singh holds a bachelor's degree from St. Stephen's College, a master's from Western Michigan University and a Ph.D. from Purdue University. He is the author of the novel Journey to Mandala.

Sonja Dragomanovic Haydar, associate professor of dance, conducted a ballet and ethnic dance seminar in June in Athens, Greece, at the request of the Ballet and Dance Club of Greece and the prestigious Choreodrama Company of Athens. A member of the MWC faculty since 1968, Ms. Haydar was invited to return for a longer teaching assignment. She has extensive professional dance experience and background in dance education.

Donald E. Glover, professor of English and director of graduate studies, was appointed to the Charter Revision Committee for the Association of Graduate Liberal Studies Programs.

Stephenson Fund Established

A group of friends, colleagues and former students of Mary Ellen Stephenson, who recently retired from MWC, has established a fund in her honor. Proceeds will go toward purchase of modern foreign language books for the College library.

Anyone wishing to contribute to this fund should make a check payable to the MWC Foundation with the notation that it is for the Mary Ellen Stephenson Fund. Checks may be mailed to Mrs. Margaret Hofmann, Chairperson, Department of Modern Foreign Languages, Mary Washington College, Fredericksburg, Va. 22401.

Campus Turns Khaki

Boy Scouts! Boy Scouts! Boy Scouts! No matter where you looked, either on campus or anywhere near Fredericksburg, you were bound to see groups of khaki-clad young men here for the International Boy Scout Jamboree at Ft. A.P. Hill in Bowling Green. Thirty thousand scouts actually stayed at the campsite, but many more came for a visit during the week-long event, which began July 27. Not a few of these visiting scouts found accommodations at Mary Washington, which also hosted boys from the West Coast who were attending the Jamboree, but arrived early to tour the historic sights and visit monuments.

With occupancy averaging more than 1,000 per night, the College trained extra personnel to make the visit as smooth as possible. Dr. A. Ray Merchant, vice president for continuing education and director of summer programs, had the awesome responsibility of coordinating all elements of the group's visit. He reports that, judging from the comments of both scouts and their leaders, as well as from members of families who also came to visit the Jamboree and stayed at MWC, the College made a very positive impression. He pointed out that other groups that came at various times throughout the summer were complimentary about the quality of the residence halls, the beauty of the campus and the professional quality of the services rendered during their visits. Scouts also received literature about educational opportunities at Mary Washington, as did many of the 200,000 Jamboree visitors who also took the time to tour Fredericksburg and the campus.

While the Boy Scouts were unquestionably the largest group to visit in recent years, perhaps one of the most interesting groups was the International Mathematical Olympiad. This group of scholars, advisers to young people from around the world who took part in a competition in Washington, selected final questions for the Olympiad and translated them into 12 languages. The group presented the College with interesting sights, including multi-language conversations, and unusual requests, such as providing typewriting equipment designed to print in various languages and reproduce mathematical symbols.

Two groups, which are designed to work with pre-college students, also returned to MWC this past summer—the Governor's School for the Gifted and Upward Bound. The Governor's School, under the direction of William B. Crawley, Jr., provides 150 outstanding high school students with the opportunity to participate in a variety of enrichment activities. Special guest lectures, sessions with MWC faculty and administrators and trips to Washington are all part of the four week agenda for these promising young men and women.

Upward Bound is a year-round educational program designed to provide academic reinforcement for students from economically disadvantaged backgrounds who show college potential. The six-week summer residency gives students the chance to sample aspects of College life and receive intensive work in College preparatory areas including writing and mathematics. Fifty students from the Rappahannock region took part in the residency program this summer.

Also returning to campus was the Chatham Orchestra Institute for young musicians 12 and older. Under the direction of Jim Baker, chairman of the MWC music department, the orchestra also offered the Fredericksburg community a lovely concert at the conclusion of the institute. Women's Aglow Fellowship and Super Star Spirit and Sports Camps returned to campus, for another year. Virginia school principals conducted a Principals' Institute in early August, and throughout the summer, regular MWC summer school activities continued.

A Difficult Act to Follow

Women's tennis coach and MWC Athletic Director Edward H. Hegmann included the following in a letter to his team reflecting on its 1980-81 season.

"The 1980-81 tennis team met and exceeded all goals for the season and shattered many long-standing records along the way. It was truly a fantastic achievement for such a young team to reach these lofty heights. We had a seasonal record of 19-6, finished second in the state (missing first by one and one half points), finished second in the region (missing first by one half points,) and completed the season by placing 13th in the nation, (missing the top seven by three points)! In the final analysis, we may have set our goals too low, but our finishes at all three levels are still a great tribute to much hard work, dedication and sacrifice by all members of the team!"

Hegmann's praise for his own team might just as well apply to each and every Blue Tide team. Throughout the year, MWC athletic teams reached and surpassed team goals and all-time records. In the fall season, the women's cross country team became Mary Washington's first full team representative at a national tournament. By the end of the spring season, three Mary Washington teams, including Hegmann's netters and the field hockey squad, had traveled that far.

Spring season awards ran Mary Washington's total of first, second and third place Virginia trophies to seven in the 10 Blue Tide women's sports. In two more sports, riding and golf, state championships as such are not held and in the third, field hockey, Mary Washington's team finished fifth in Virginia, but third in Region II and ninth in the national AIAW Tournament.

In the spring alone, two seconds and a third were added to the total. The track team joined Hegmann's netters as Virginia runners-up. In only their second trip to the statewide meet as an intercollegiate team, the tracksters earned three first places, all by sophomore competitors, and set six Mary Washington records, three by second year runner Terry Hudachek.

The women's lacrosse team contributed the Blue Tide's third state level award of the spring season with a third place finish in its Division III championship. Paced by seven goals in three games by graduating senior Chris Hruby, the Tide stopped Randolph Macon and Lynchburg colleges, but a loss to Bridgewater College stopped the Tide.

The golf and riding teams, unable to boast a state award, set new marks as well. The linkswomen tallied their best scores ever and the equestrians qualified more riders for the regional show than any other team in the event. For the third consecutive season, one of those riders advanced to the national show. In that national show, held at St. Lawrence (NY) University, freshman Dawn Detweiler won a fourth place ribbon in novice horsemanship on the flat.

The springtime success of the men's teams is indicated by the tennis results. Competing as an NCAA Independent, in only their fourth year as an intercollegiate team, the men raised their record from a dismal 1-13 in 1980 to a respectable 7-8 mark in 1981.

Renewed Efforts for 1981-82

"Considering our outstanding recruiting year and our returning athletes, each and every team has the potential to perform extremely well during the 1981-82 sports season," according to Hegmann. A team by team glance echoes this belief. The volleyball team lost only one starter and the field hockey team lost six, but both are set to gain many talented freshman. The soccer team graduated two seniors but has more than 20 incoming freshmen to vie for those two spots. The men's cross country team should have nearly a brand new lineup of freshmen and a new coach to drive them. The women's cross country team is posed to repeat its 15th place finish nationally with a new class to replace two graduates. And the women's tennis team, which did so well last year, has three newcomers who, Coach Hegmann believes, may reach the top six spots on the team ladder.

But, as always, freshmen are unknown quantities and past Mary Washington College success is far from unknown among its competitors; therefore, guarded optimism and renewed efforts are the watchwords.

Returning to Hegmann's letter to his athletes, the tone for next year is clear. "Athletics, like life, however, do not afford us much opportunity to sit back and bask in the shining glories of past achievements," Hegmann writes. "Because of our successes of last year, we are not going to sneak up on anybody. It will be increasingly difficult to maintain our fine records. Therefore, if we want to experience regional and national competition again, we can't sit back now!"

Wagenaar Named Track and Cross Country Coach

By Terry Bonner

Rick Wagenaar at new track facility

Rick Wagenaar, formerly the track and cross country coach at Centre College in Danville, Kentucky, has been named the men's and women's track coach and the men's cross country coach at MWC. Wagenaar is the second new member of the athletic department named in 1981. In April Doug Fonder was appointed to head the new men's swimming program and assume women's swim and dive team duties as well.

"I hope to build a strong program at MWC," Wagenaar said. "It will be a challenge, but the foundation is already here." Mary Washington's eight-lane, Rubaturf-surfaced track and field complex is "the best track facility of any small college program in Virginia and maybe in the East," according to the 26-year-old graduate of Aquinas College. "That, plus the combination of strong academic reputation and low cost education attracted me, and I'm sure will attract fine athletes," the coach continued.

During Wagenaar's three-year tenure at Centre, his track teams set 31 records—"basically every school record," Wagenaar commented. "In 1981, we were, overall, the strongest small college team in Kentucky." During that season, Wagenaar led the Centre Colonials to their highest conference finish ever, as the team placed second in the six-team College Athletic Conference.

"Rick has shown that he knows what it takes to build a strong program" Athletic Director Edward H. Hegmann said in praise of his new coach. "He is knowledgeable and has proven himself to be successful at recruiting," Hegmann continued. "I expect Mary Washington's track and cross country programs to go nowhere but up under Rick's direction."

Wagenaar himself was a four-event, All District track athlete at Aquinas and reached the national NAIA meet in the triple jump event in 1975. He holds a master's degree from Eastern Kentucky University.

Report of Gifts 1980-81

Message from the President

Dear Alumni and Friends of Mary Washington College:

The 1980-81 Mary Washington College Annual Fund established a new record year with a total of $139,947.34, an increase of 38.6 per cent over 1979-80. These important private gifts play a key role in enabling this College to enrich the lives of its students and achieve a greater margin of excellence. My personal thanks and those of the College are extended to the many alumni, students, parents, friends and corporations who supported the 1980-81 Annual Fund.

The President's Club was established in 1980-81 to honor the College's leading annual contributors, those who contribute $1,000 or more to the Annual Fund. I am very grateful to the 14 inaugural members of the President's Club. These gift leaders set the pace for all of us in reaching new levels of commitment to the future of the College.

Contributions from 2,895 alumni of the College accounted for 70 per cent of the funds received. It was especially gratifying that 341 additional alumni participated in the 1980-81 Annual Fund than in 1979-80. This loyal support from both individual alumni and the several alumni chapters shows the expanded interest and concern for the College.

Gifts received from parents of MWC students (both present and past) increased by 110 per cent, reaching a record $12,859. We are grateful for this loyalty and dedication to Mary Washington.

A special note of thanks is extended to the more than 100 businesses and corporations that participated in the Annual Fund. This is a growing area of support for the College and is a most welcomed one.

Many faculty, staff and students also participated in the Annual Fund. The College is grateful for their generous financial support.

Mary Washington faces the future with confidence. By marshaling our creative resources and building on our accomplishments, the College can achieve goals at higher levels. For Mary Washington to reach these higher levels of quality in these inflationary times, the College must continue its Regional Scholarship Program; it must provide for faculty advanced study, participation in professional meetings and publications; it must bring distinguished scholars to the campus for lectures and informal association with students; it must protect the quality of its library holdings; it must continue its special academic advising programs and counseling services; and it must maintain its unique role as the state's distinguished small undergraduate residential College of liberal arts and sciences.

In 1981-82 a minimum of $200,000 in private giving is needed by the College. These gifts are the critical difference required for the College to achieve a new level of excellence.

Again, thank you for your 1980-81 contribution. I ask you to continue to share in the College's excitement as we begin our 1981-82 "Margin of Excellence Campaign" with a goal of $200,000.

Sincerely,

Prince B. Woodard

Transition in The Alumni House

By Linda Evans

Barbara Burton

The past nine months have seen a transition in the alumni house, not only in its leadership, but in its motive. In addition to being the hub of alumni social activity, the association and the College are moving to justify the association's existence in terms of a business organization and an institution vital to MWC.

That observation, after just three weeks on the job, was presented by Barbara S. Burton, the new director of alumni affairs at MWC. A 1974 graduate of the College, she follows interim director Bambi C. Willis, who took over when Mary Carson resigned to take another position.

"After nearly five years of rapid growth and fine leadership in the alumni house under the direction of Mary Carson, I am humbled to have been selected to follow her as director of alumni affairs," Ms. Burton told the alumni board.

"Mary gave our association flair and confidence. We will miss her." The hiring of a competent interim director, she said, allowed the board sufficient time to analyze and evaluate the status and direction of both the Alumni Association and the position of director of alumni affairs.

The transition does not stop with the selection of a new director. "In evaluating our responsibility as alumni, the board decided that we could best offer our support to the College by coordinating our efforts more closely with the development office. For that reason, we will be sharing Anne Fairfax Alumni House with the new director of development, Charles Repp," Ms. Burton announced.

"Since the very purpose for the existence of the Alumni Association is to provide unique kinds of support for the College, Mr. Repp will join me in working with you to create a true margin of excellence at MWC through alumni and community involvement. Even though we will be sharing the second floor of the Alumni House, it is still your home, and you will find the comfort and cordiality much the same as it has been in the past," Ms. Burton predicted.

Looking ahead, she said it is up to her to see that the association reaches an even keel and maintains a course toward growth in its relationship with the College. "Mary gave us a board capable of making a transition. Bambi caused us to change course in that direction, to analyze and to think.

"We are fundamentally sound. We operate from a stable base; however, much that I see that needs to be improved can be accomplished by strengthening the channels of communication. Our transition in motive, I believe, is rooted in our desire to create a margin of excellence for MWC. State funds do only so much, and what we add to state contributions in time, money and effort builds for us that margin of excellence. The programs that we support, with all our talents, make us different—they create that margin," she observed.

"The margin of excellence translates into quality in all our purposes. We must be reliable, responsible, consistent and predictable; such that it becomes an assumed and simple fact that whatever we do will be done with the assurance of quality and care."

The MWC Experience Personified

By Bambi Creighton Willis '73

Ann Palamar

Now and then we are fortunate to meet someone who enriches our lives, changing us. It is done quietly by example; it is indirect, not insistent.

Ann Perinchief Palamar '67 has such an effect. One likes her immediately. She is friendly and attractive. Later one is impressed with her organization and judgement. But it is her sincerity and commitment that linger in the mind; her sensitivity that endears her to others.

Ann has been an integral part of Mary Washington since 1963 when she entered as a freshman from New Jersey. She graduated in 1967 with a B.A. in history after receiving the Thomas Jefferson cup (MWC Alumni Award) for academic achievement and outstanding service to the college.

Immediately following graduation, Ann worked as administrative assistant to the director of admissions. In July 1968, she became assistant director of admissions, serving in that capacity until January 1969 when she began work as director of alumni affairs.

In September 1972, Ann resigned this position to enter the Marshall-Wythe School of Law at the College of William and Mary. At this time she was also appointed to serve on the first Board of Visitors for Mary Washington College which had just announced independence from the University of Virginia.

Ann received her Juris Doctorate from William and Mary in June 1975, and returned to Fredericksburg as assistant commonwealth's attorney. She was elected president-elect of the Alumni Association in 1978, serving until 1980 when she assumed her duties as president.

While recounting her associations with the college, Ann noted that her greatest insights stemmed from her work in the admissions office. It was there she saw the sensitivity and dedication of college personnel. She feels her continued support is natural when one considers the quality of life at MWC. Volunteer support comes readily after contact with the students, and she has yet to find an alumnus with whom she did not enjoy working. One has to wonder, though, if Ann herself has not added immeasurably to this quality and congeniality.

Characterizing her tenure as president of the Alumni Association as one of organization and consolidation, she said the association has grown tremendously in the past several years, entering many new areas of involvement. She would like to see these new areas strengthened and defined. She looks forward to the day when alumni support generates a myriad of quality programs for the college.

Ann is not unusual. Rather she typifies the Mary Washington student, lending proof that the MWC experience is of the finest calibre.

Bambi Willis has recently completed five months of service as interim director of alumni affairs.

Alumni Board Changes

Each year the Alumni Association Board of Directors elects three of its six officers. They serve two year terms and may not succeed themselves. This year the three positions filled as a result of the spring election were Vice President for the Annual Fund, Patricia Hatfield Mayer '54; Vice President for Homecoming, Susan Jacobius Davis '73; and Vice President for Chapters, Edith Sheppard Ott '59. The following brief descriptions will introduce you to our new officers:

VICE PRESIDENT FOR FUND

Patricia Hatfield Mayer '54

After receiving her B.S. in chemistry from MWC, Pat pursued graduate study in library science at the University of South Carolina. Her professional career includes 11 years in junior management and buyer level at Woodward and Lothrop Department Stores in the Washington area. She is currently confidential secretary to Lt. Governor Charles S. Robb and to Mrs. Lynda Bird Johnson Robb. Pat has been active with the Girl Scouts of America, Junior Woman's Club of Fairfax County, registrar of the N.S.D.A.R., the Women's Committee of the National Symphony and ARCS (Achievement Rewards College Scientists) to raise funds for graduate study scholarships for students who wish to further their science and medical careers. She is married and the mother of two MWC graduates, Kathleen Mayer '77 and Leslie Mayer '78. She has a son, Elliot. While Kathy was a senior at MWC, Pat co-chaired the Parent's Campaign Committee for the MWC Alumni Fund.

VICE PRESIDENT FOR HOMECOMING

Susan Jacobius Davis '73

Susan received her B.A. in art history from MWC and joined the Navy as a lieutenant. Her first six years were spent in Norfolk, Virginia on the air staff as assistant administrative officer. She is now a recruiting officer in Richmond, Virginia. While in Norfolk, Susan was recording secretary for the MWC Tidewater Chapter and a member of the Regional Scholarship Selection Committee. She is currently a member of the Richmond Chapter. Susan is the reunion agent for the class of '73 and has attended the last two Alumni Leadership Conferences. Her outside activities have included serving as a Girl Scout leader from 1976-79.

VICE PRESIDENT FOR CHAPTERS

Edith Sheppard Ott '59

After receiving her degree in psychology from Mary Washington College, Edith was awarded her M.S. and Ph.D. degrees in clinical psychology from Virginia Commonwealth University. She is a licensed clinical psychologist in Virginia and a member of the Virginia Academy of Clinical Psychology. Currently, Edith is an assistant professor of psychology at the University of Richmond and a fellow in the Gestalt Institute of Richmond. Her list of alumni activities includes membership in the Richmond Chapter of the MWC Alumni Association, membership on the selection committee for the Distinguished Alumnus Award in 1976, and chairmanship of the Third District Regional Scholarship Committee. She has served on this committee since 1976. Edith has two daughters at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, and one sixth-grade son.

Chapter News

Fairfax: Many thanks go to Betty Fischer Gore '49 for her efforts in organizing the boutique for the 1981 Tyson's Corner Charity Bazaar. In March the chapter hosted a freshman social, organized by Susan Landerghini Boehm '66.

Fredericksburg: In May the Fredericksburg Chapter celebrated its first Crab Feast for local alumni and their families. Held at Alum Spring Park, it was such fun that it promises to be an annual event! Already, the Fredericksburg diehards are at work on planning for exam survival kits, silk roses and birthday cakes to be delivered to students throughout the school year.

Charlotte: The Charlotte Chapter is delighted to report that the sale of Mary Washington's Cookbook is now entering the profit stage, and proceeds are being earmarked for the Regional Scholarship fund.

Announcing Homecoming 1982!

June 5, 1982 is the date for Homecoming, which will honor the reunion classes of 1932, 1937, 1942, 1947, 1952, 1957, 1962, 1967, 1972 and 1977. Make your plans now to come back to campus, spend a weekend in your old dorm and party with your old friends. The flexible schedule of events for Homecoming 1982 will allow you more time than ever for renewing those old relationships and enjoying walks on the beautiful MWC campus. A cordial invitation is also extended to all non-reunioning classes to come and celebrate with their contemporaries!

Classnotes

NOTE TO CLASS AGENTS: Please type your class news; this helps tremendously in preparing copy for the magazine. Also, we need agents for the classes of 1917, 1920, 1928, and 1930. Will someone please volunteer?

The list of class agents is printed in its entirety in this issue so that even if there is no news this time, class members may see who their agent is and write for next time. The class agent list has been changed considerably during the summer. If there are any errors, please contact the alumni office immediately.

You will notice that some class agents previously listed are no longer being listed in MWC TODAY. The reason is that some have agreed to serve their class in other ways, such as becoming reunion agents or fund agents. In other cases we have been unable to determine if the class agent still wishes to gather class news. Also, the reduction in the number of agents' names to be printed will give us more space for news. If there are corrections to be made, please notify the Alumni Office. We would like to take this opportunity to thank all class agents and all others who help us keep MWC alumni abreast of news of their classmates.

I have received the spring 1981 issue of "MWC Today" and found it intensely interesting. Profiles of Patti Head Ferguson and the Carter family prove we have caring and helping people in our world. 1959: So glad to have news of Sigrid Stanley Jackman, Dr. Stanley's daughter. I taught Sigrid in the second grade at Montpelier School in Hanover County. Children now grown. I wonder where she lives.

Attended the wedding of a great nephew in Staunton in January; that of a friend in May and a friend's daughter in June. More than usual for me. My daughter, Virginia Johnson, and I enjoyed the spring luncheon of the Richmond Chapter, MWC Alumni. I knew only a few girls, but MWC girls are always friendly. One of my daughters, Ann Joyner of Doswell, has had a cast on her leg, a result of a knee injury in an automobile accident early in March.

No news from classmates except Elsie Wood Rice. She is a good correspondent and stays well. Did not attend Homecoming as none of the Class of 1915 attended. On June 3, I attended the "Massing of the Flags" at Jefferson Davis Monument in Richmond. Large attendance of United Daughters of the Confederacy and a fine speaker from Washington. At the luncheon I was surprised by a hug from Isabel Gordon. She had taken a day off from duties at the College to bring a lady from Kentucky. I was delighted to see her.

Recently I saw Olie Mae Hope and Barbara Bruce Duke Jones at a District Woman's Club Workshop. Both are active in club work. Barbara is very active in Hanover County as a member of the Hanover County Planning Commission. I taught her in the second grade at Montpelier School.

My step-son, Robert Everette Vellines, Jr., living in Charlotte, North Carolina, passed away June 6. We drove down to be with the bereaved wife and daughter.

Let me hear from you.

It is time again to report the news of our class, but you have really let me down. We would love to hear from you.

I just talked to Elmyrna Snead Thomas. She lives at the Baptist Lakewood Manor in Richmond and has been quite sick but is better and back in her nice apartment. Hope she continues to improve.

I talk to Sarah Johnson at times and she is still doing her good work helping old friends. She is a retired nurse.

Three of my friends and I were at Virginia Beach for a week, and Beatrice White Minton entertained us for lunch and bridge at the Princess Anne Country Club. She is doing well. I called her on the phone today to sing "Happy Birthday". She has reached her 83rd year five months ahead of me. We are blessed with good health and hope you all are too.

I was hoping to hear from a number of the Class of '19 and having a newsy letter.

Grace Mason Snuggs was the only one that responded. She congratulated me on being class representative and promised to give me her backing. On June 27 Grace and Harold celebrated their 58th wedding anniversary. She recalled her days as a freshman at Mary Washington, being befriended by two seniors, namely Mariam Perrin Creel and Ina Taylor Powell. Both are widowed now. Miriam lives in Montgomery, Alabama and Ina is still in Cape Charles in the summer but spends the winters with her sons and their families.

Grace hears from Ruby Beazley Douglass of Charlottesville and hopes that Ruby, who keeps in touch with some of the girls, will soon be writing about all of their happenings.

In several newspapers recently a picture appeared of Hotel Chesapeake, Lewisetta, Virginia and one of Mattie Edwards Garner. The following caption was "It was Honey-moon Hotel until . . .". In June 1919 Mattie Edwards was wed to James R. Garner and the couple moved in an apartment in the decade-old Hotel Chesapeake. It wasn't the Plaza, but Mattie was close to the school in which she was teaching. On a frigid March night only nine months after moving in, the hotel burned to the ground.

Mattie was a very successful teacher for many years. Later Mattie ran the Garner Store in Lewisetta. She also served as house mother at Mary Washington College for quite awhile and upon retirement moved back to Lewisetta.

Mattie was widowed in 1949. She has three grown children, all married with families of their own. Mattie and Jim were quite musical as are her children. Mattie has a right to be proud of her family.

From Rachael Wingfield DeAngelo: I attended the 100th Annual Conference of the American Library Association and the American Association of School Librarians in San Francisco in June. I served as the first full-time executive secretary of the American Association of School Librarians 1952-54, when I was called to Queens College, University of the City of New York to establish a library education program, serving as professor and coordinator from 1954 to 1966. Preferring teaching to administration, I went to Drexel University, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania where I taught in the Graduate School of Library Studies until 1967 when I made a final move to the Graduate School of Library Studies, University of Hawaii. Here I taught until retirement as professor emeritus in 1973. I spent the summer vacations teaching at San Jose (California) State University and the University of Nevada at Reno. I remain active in professional associations and in local cultural and educational activities.

My husband, Benedict, joined me in 1969 after his retirement from the Yonkers, New York Public Schools and was immediately "drafted" into a more rigorous—only different—program from his teaching! Other than being so far away from family and life-long and cherished friends, we think Hawaii is "no ka o e," (without equal).

Winnie L. Mason is living with her mother in Exmore, Virginia. She had taught 35 years before retiring in 1971. She has been active in church and community activities and especially involved with the Eastern Shore Association for Retarded Citizens.

Our 45th Reunion was a happy time, and we would like to share it with you. Here is a letter written by Vernie Blankenship Knight, reunion chairman:

"Homecoming 1981 and our 45th reunion were most enjoyable. For the first time since graduating in 1936, I stayed for the whole weekend. I heartily recommend it, and plan to do the same thing in 1986. We had time to share so many wonderful memories as well as present activities.

"Frances Liebenow Armstrong's party on Friday afternoon was lovely, and set the tone for a friendly, convivial weekend. "No one is happier than I that we attained our financial goal. So determined were those present to reach our quota that extra contributions were made. A gift of more than $2,500 was presented to the MWC Foundation in honor of the following in recognition of their special contributions to the teaching profession:

"Marshall Schools, who while associate professor of teaching in physical education at the University of Northern Iowa in Cedar Rapids, was author of 'Cheerleading—A Road to Good Sportsmanship' and was co-author of 'Challenging Activities for the Early Years.' Marshall retired in 1976 after spending 40 years in the teaching profession, mostly at the college level.

"Ruby Lee Norris Norris, who edited and co-edited a dialogue series for the Richmond Humanities Center. She has had articles published in various professional journals. Ruby Lee retired in June 1981 after 41 years, the last 10 being with the Henrico County Public Schools. She has been a writing consultant for middle and high schools.

"Julia Frances Robinson, who retired in January 1980, after having devoted 43½ years to the field of education, the greater part of it spent as a supervisor of instructional media services in Petersburg.

"Stewart Jones, who retired in June 1980, having divided 44 years between Alexandria and Stafford County as a guidance counselor. Stewart earned her doctorate in 1970 from American University. She, too, has published in professional journals, and is now working on a book on church history.

"Frances Liebenow Armstrong, who began her teaching career in Nottoway County, Virginia, retired in June 1981, after 45 years in the profession, including the Fredericksburg Public Schools where she taught since 1938. Frances has been head of the Social Studies Department of James Monroe High School, and has been active in many civic endeavors and outstanding in the MWC Alumni Association.

"Recognized for writing accomplishments were: Adelle Mansfield Goodwin who wrote 'The First Hundred Years of Kirk of the Cliff Presbyterian Church;' Mary Frances Rowe Varner who was one of the editors of 'The History of Washington' published by Knoff in 1978; and last, but not least, Ethel Nelson Wetmore who has been our class agent for 25 years, sharing the last five years with Adell Mansfield Goodwin.

"With a bit of arm-twisting, I agreed to be your reunion chairman for 1986. Preparing for our 45th was a happy, and sometimes hectic, time for me. I look forward to preparing, with your help, for our 50th Reunion, and our becoming members of the Golden Club. If we can reach our financial goal 100%, can we reach a goal of 100% attendance then? Think 50th now!"

Sincerely,
Vernie B. Knight

Vernie also edited our Reunion Booklet. As someone said: "We found a little jewel in Vernie". We all thank you, Vernie, and are so happy you are to be chairman again for the big 50th in 1986! Also present at some of the festivities of the reunion were W. H. Carper, William B. "Bus" Knight and Sidney Armstrong. We sent a "Thinking of You" card signed by these at our class meeting to Dr. and Mrs. Moss.

Here are some notes, mostly gleaned from the Reunion Booklet:

Vernie Blankenship Knight's activities now include helping each week to prepare the newsletter of Imanuel Church-on-the-Hill, Altar Guild and Book Club. She has two children and three grandchildren. Vernie and her husband have recently donated their little Penguin sailboat to the Maritime Museum now being formed in Yorktown.

Nancy Browning Bryant received her master's degree from the University of Tennessee in 1940. She has three daughters.

Nona Deckert Higgins Morse lives in Naples, Florida, and her three daughters all chose different colleges from which to graduate—University of Maine, Rochester University and Mary Baldwin College. Family, golf and bridge keep her busy.

Thelma Evans Douthat has a son who graduated from the University of Virginia, another son, a William and Mary graduate, who earned master's and Ph.D. degrees from Duke University, and a daughter, who attended MWC, but was graduated from the Medical College of Virginia. Thelma enjoys golf and her garden club.

Lucille Hitt Lane is now a broker and proprietor of Lucille Lane Real Estate, Ashland. She is a member of Hanover County Republican Committee and was congressional senior intern for Congressman J. Kenneth Robertson, 1979. She has a letter in the Congressional Record about her trip to Washington as an intern and her meeting with the President in the Rose Garden. They enjoy boating on the Potomac and Chesapeake Bay.

Marjorie Hundley Wootten has three children. Her husband owned "The Shoe Box" in Hampton for many years, and is now retired. Marjorie taught elementary education, and is a volunteer piano player in a nursing home, likes all kinds of crafts, makes rag dolls as a hobby and collects dolls.

Louise Jennings Creamer taught in a continuation high school, San Mateo, as an assistant in English, and as a tutor for GEO tests. She has attended homecomings in 1956, '76 and now in '81, coming from Millbrae, California. Her daughter, Judith, is a probation officer in Alameda County, and her son, Bob, is a probation officer in Santa Clara County. Her younger daughter, Sally, lives in Arizona and is married to an airline pilot. Louise has three grandchildren.

Adelle Mansfield Goodwin has had, for the last 20 years, miscellaneous non-paying positions as bookkeeper and "gopher" in the Goodwin dairy business. We thank Adelle for her five years as our class agent. Adelle has four children and three grandchildren.

Winnie Mason retired as a teacher in the Norfolk City Public Schools. She is a member of the Eastern Shore of Virginia chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma Society. Winnie does volunteer work with the Eastern Shore Association of Retarded Citizens.

Dorothy McGuire Bunch's daughter, Susan, was married to William Bruce Brittingham on June 6th at the Larchmont United Methodist Church, Norfolk. Dorothy has two sons, a daughter, and two grandchildren.

Margaret Moore Hopkins' husband died in June 1980. From 1969 until 1977 she was director of admissions at Salisbury State College, Maryland. A son is with the Connecticut General Insurance Company, and her daughter is a student, University of North Carolina Law School.

Ruby Lee Norris Norris retired in June. She was employed as a writing consultant for middle and high schools in the Henrico County Public Schools. She received her master's in humanities from the University of Richmond in 1972. Ruby Lee is a member of the Virginia Association of Teachers of English and Delta Kappa Gamma. She has one son and three grandsons, 8 to 13.

Audrey Rose Burton has courses toward a master's in business at the University of Richmond. In 1957 she received the Joseph F. Harris Award for professional development of the American Association of Rehabilitation Therapists. Audrey has two sons and four grandchildren. She enjoys reading, bridge and handwork of all kinds.

Mary Frances Rowe Varner served as treasurer, Washington committee, National Cathedral Association, from 1976 until 1980, and as a member of the boards of the Junior League of Washington, Family and Child

Services and Homemaker, Health Aid Service. Special interests include reading, music, museums, galleries and traveling.

Nannie Marshall Schools received her master's at George Pebody College in 1964. From 1949 to 1976 she was associated with the University of Northern Iowa. For her work in physical education and planning a new facility, a plaque was placed in the field house in her honor.

Joyce Stead received her master's in 1943, and a J.D. from Emory University in 1950. Joyce was a staff manager for the Central Bell Telephone Company in Pelham, Alabama. She belongs to the Life Members Club of Telephone Pioneers of America and is a volunteer in recreation in a recreational hospital.

Elton Waring Market was secretary to the faculty of the Industrial College of the Armed Forces, Ft. McNair, Washington, D.C. from 1967 to 1974. She is a member of the National Association of Retired Federal Employees, a volunteer for her church's thrift shop, and a driver for Health Plus. Her daughter teaches at Florida Institute of Technology and has two children.

"Bill" Wheeler McCallum is a member of Delta Kappa Gamma and the U.S. Army Wives Club. "Bill" received the Girl Scout "Thanks Badge" in 1954-55. She edited the first MWC Alumni Association Handbook for Chapters, and was on the board of the MWC Alumni Association in 1966. She has two children and three grandchildren.

Speaking of grandchildren, Audrey Aldrich Silver has seven, and Mary Alice Turman Carper has six. Mary Alice has twin daughters and Hattie Riggs Gaskin also had twins.

Mary-Paul Phillips Lacy sent a letter received just in time to read at our class meeting. Her husband retired from the faculty of California Polytechnic University in June 1980. They took a trip to Hawaii, and upon their return, the dean persuaded him to teach the fall quarter. He also holds conferences for Japanese businessmen on campus. In May, Mary-Paul accompanied her husband as he took businessmen to Atlanta, Roanoke and Washington, D.C. During each conference, the Japanese are given a house tour of the Lacy home. Mary-Paul is a member of the Casa Colina Hospital Auxiliary and is one of the commentators for their fashion shows, two of which took place in March.

Edna Harley Sickels and her husband retired two years ago, and live in Sun City, Arizona.

Arline Wade Winn lives in Kenbridge, Virginia. She has not taught for the past three years, but taught in Kenbridge prior to retirement, and was department chairman. Her husband is office manager and secretary-treasurer of Commonwealth Tobacco Company. From 1941 to 1947 Arline was secretary to both President Burruss and President Hutcheson of VPI.

Frances Louise Smith Martin has retired, but still does substitute teaching. At the reunion, she stayed two nights with her daughter, Marsha Martin, MWC class of 1968.

Page Whitehead Hladky and Emil drove to California and stopped to see Ann McCallum Freers, '64, in Aspen, Colorado.

Lt. Col. Charles F. McCallum (retired) died on May 10th after a long illness. We send our sympathy and love to "Bill" and her family. Six of our class members were at the funeral, which was with full military honors.

I hope to have news of those I haven't written about in the next issue. Again, thanks to so many who helped with the reunion!

Julia Hartley Loving's son-in-law, Dr. John Karickhoff, received a Distinguished Service Award for starting and operating an eye clinic for Vietnamese people.

From Helen: Five members of the class of '38 held a mini-reunion at Days Inn in Williamsburg shortly before Easter. Mary Kettenbeck Gademian drove her Connecticut Rabbit to West Orange, New Jersey, picking up Flora Ryan Durgin on the way. They proceeded to the home of Helen "Press" Voris at Elk Ridge, where they spent the night, then on next day to Williamsburg. Stopped in Fredericksburg to feed us, and the car, and got to Williamsburg to find that Dot Ballance Skinner of Arlington, and Virginia "Bill" Easley of Chatham had checked in ahead of us. Spent Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday in enjoyable fashion, the chief activity being talking and more talking. Pictures of spouses, grandchildren, homes, travels, etc., were exchanged. Two of our number suffered from severe laryngitis as a result. We enjoyed having lunch with Carolyn Sinclair, and visiting in her home on Mobjack Bay near Gloucester. She and her sister, Indie, will shortly move to the Westminster Canterbury Retirement Center in Richmond.

Christmas brought notes from Skippy Milstead Goodwin in Atlanta and from Mitchell Lyman who is getting back into the mainstream after losing her husband.

All seemed to be enjoying retirement. None had severe health problems, and this is fine as our 45th is just over the horizon.

I would like to receive news from more of you. Florence Massey, Irene Blasdel, Cat Chamberlain, Elizabeth Jones, Doris Lafoon and many, many more. Keep some news coming!

Mrs. Mary Bowles Hartley

Roanoke, Va. 24018

Helen Downer Hale retired in December 1978 from her position as eligibility supervisor with the Orange County Department of Welfare. She was presented a Meritorious Service Award "in recognition of her 35 years of service and many contributions she made to the Orange County Department of Public Welfare."

From Mary: Early in May I had a wonderful visit with Jane Sinclair Diehl, my MWC roommate, and Genevieve (Gen) Cobb Copley '42. They were in Roanoke for the state convention of Delta Kappa Gamma. As at MWC Jane is still a VIP! In 1980 she was installed as state president of this international honorary society for key women educators, to serve until 1982. Gen, who teaches in York City, like Jane, is treasurer of the local chapter. Believe it or not, Jane retired this spring! Let's see if she answers to that old bell in the fall or stays home to enjoy the lovely place she and Oliver built several years ago on the water near Yorktown.

As I write this I am getting ready to make a truly flying tip to Memphis to see the No. 2 daughter perform in a musical, returning in 48 hours to get ready to go to Scandanavia.

So what are you doing? Thank you, Mildred Williams, for your nice, prompt reply to my card. Wish all of you who have had cards from me would write.

From Henrietta: From New Jersey comes word that Janie Crowder Boyd and her husband are deeply involved in church activities and visiting with family members who live close to their home.

Mary Davenport Steed has retired from teaching in N.C. and enjoys the woman's club, playing bridge and needlepoint.

By the time this column is being read Dolly Falconer McGuirt will be in retired status. This will give her time to become involved with senior citizens activities. Dolly has traveled extensively in this country, Mexico and Europe.

It was especially rewarding and interesting to read the memory section of a recent questionnaire and many individual letters sent to your class agents. "Working one's way through college" was a familiar expression of the '30's and many of our classmates recalled waiting tables three times a day, seven days a week. Several of you have asked that we stop by and see you and your family. Wouldn't it be super to make a specific itinerary that would take us through Virginia and other states so we could drop in on other MWC gals?

The cabin was prominently mentioned, as was Dr. Baker, Dr. Young and Dr. Dodd. I have checked Dr. Alvey's History of MWC and find that the cabin was built by the Athletic Association and offered for use, and that it was located in the wooded area behind Willard. Are we all talking about the same location?

Maude Smith Swartz mentioned that she and Georgiana Woodhouse enjoyed walking slowly on campus because of its beauty, except going to class—then they ran.

Although this is not the winter issue—Merry Christmas anyway and who was your peanut the last Christmas you were at MWC? That ritual was great fun. This leads to the most mentioned phase of MWC life—friendships made while at MWC. Now, if we could just get some of you who haven't written to do so—well, that would be great.

Now to close on a personal note—in May Mildred Williams and Henrietta had their own mini-reunion in Hampton. Mildred was up with her sister to visit a friend, and we had one afternoon together. If you want a column you will have to write to one of your class agents and soon.

With all the squeeling and laughing, it was like college days again when a group of us met for luncheon in Richmond in May.

Rosella Tuck Davidson has retired from her work at Reynold's Metals Co. She is working as a volunteer for the independent group "Friends of Chuck Robb."

Barbara Gaines Mann works with her husband at Gayle Mann Const. Co. Her daughter, Barbara Faye, is public health nutritionist for the state of North Carolina. She teaches nutrition to young children through music. Mary Jack works at the Smithsonian Inst.

Jane Hatcher Major teaches music at Collegiate School in Richmond. She is happy her daughter has moved back to Richmond.

Emion Smith is principal at Beaverdam Elementary School. She lives at her family's old homeplace.

Maxine Morea Salle has five children and 10 grandchildren, one of whom graduates from high school this year. Maxine is glad she retired from teaching. She stays busy with work on the farm, grandchildren, politics and garden club.

Madeline Traina Hewitt has two sons, one of whom is a costume designer for the New York City Ballet.

Hazel Wilhoite is associate director of home economics for the state of Virginia.

Tip Rawls Tomlinson is director of electro nystamography at Richmond Memorial Hospital. Her son, Bill, is with Allyn & Bacon, and her son, Bob, is professor at Va. Southwestern Community College. Tip and Bill plan to continue working as long as their health is good.

Mary Estes Irby enjoys her retirement. She stays busy with many activities—golf, women's club, collecting—but says her broken ankle changed her life.

Mary Bess Hedrick Kittrell has retired from teaching, but still works as a substitute.

Connie Hawthorne Thoms has three grandchildren, one of whom will enter college this fall.

Hilda Harrell Roller enjoys her three grandchildren.

Please keep in touch. Fond memories to all.

From Frances: I had a note from Mary Wallace Huskey Farr that she and her new husband were going as missionaries to Pearl Harbor, Hawaii for the Baptist Home Mission Board. The church is 95 percent service connected people. From Betty Rogers Zylewitz comes news that her daughter, Stephanie, is a student at the University of Oregon. Margaret "Migit" Gardner Snyder and her husband had a "fabulous" trip to Egypt and Israel. Ruth "Fergie" Fegruson McClung has moved to Virginia Beach; her husband is a Methodist minister.

I had a most enjoyable visit with Nancy Inglis Russo last November when I attended the Dance Seminar at MWC. She has moved back to Fredericksburg.

We have "found" June Foster Fry in Bloomington, Indiana; Tina Christian Finnegan in Sacramento, California; and Jean Senacle Scott's new address is Wrightsville Beach, N.C. Thanks to Harriet Tyler Miller and Dot Scales for their help.

Dot wrote that she had cataract surgery and hasn't taught since '67. She got along beautifully. Tina is married to a retired judge and has been in California for some time. I also had a great, but short visit (spring '80) with Jo Walker and Roger Magee; they were in Raleigh for an arts conference. Audrey Donaldson Davis and her Episcopalian minister husband have recently moved to Cazenovia, New York. We'll miss them in Raleigh.

REMEMBER! 40th REUNION—1983! Write your friends and make plans now to attend. 1982 Homecoming is June 5, 1982. Help us find: Mildred Burke; Kathleen Critchett Alviani; Peggy Draper Eckenrode.

The sad news comes with the good. We lost Claire Moore Kelly in November 1980 after more than a year's bout with cancer and Carolyn Pittman Day in August 1980 due to a liver ailment. I appreciate Ralph Kelly's and Ellen Lillis McClernon's letter about Carolyn. We also lost Shirley Margery Wilson and Josephine Sieg last year.

Bertha McPhail Johnson and husband Jim still live in Hattiesburg, Mississippi. They own eight music stores throughout the state, and Jim is president of the National Music Retailers. They travel all over the country. Their two sons are married and both work in the family business. "Mac" reports with pride that she has two beautiful granddaughters.

Ruth Cowen Bauer and her husband are making their retirement home in Arlington after colorful careers with the American Red Cross and the U.S. Air Force, respectively.

Martha Scott Rogers resides in Onancock on the Eastern Shore. Her husband, Mac, is Grand Master of Freemasons in Virginia and they, too, are traveling extensively. She enjoys seeing MWC friends almost everywhere they go.

Gloria "Gibby" Denenberg was expecting her second grandchild this past summer. She retired from teaching in New York City is now teaching special education in Palmer, Texas. Both daughters live nearby.

Fran Tracy is in Lethem, Rupununi, Guyana, South America working to translate portions of the Bible into the Wapishana language.

Stella Vincent Rose's daughter was married in June and will be living near the Rose's Deltaville home. Stella is also pleased that MWC's new Director of Alumni Affairs, Bobbie Burton, is her niece.

From Jane: Oh, what a terrific weekend we had at our 35th reunion! Many thanks for the good times that were planned by Jane Hockenberry Holden and husband Roy. It was fun to go back in time and relive the wonderful college days. We looked each other over and found that some were a little chubby, had hair a little gray, or had a few wrinkles, but I think we were great looking "girls"!

Ora Robinson Bonham could not attend the reunion as her father had just died. We express our deepest sympathy.

If you want to know all the news about your classmates, send to the Alumni Office for the reunion booklet ($2). Jane Hockenberry Holden, our former fantastic class agent, has compiled an excellent 35th Reunion Booklet for us, so catch up with long-lost friends.

These bits of news came in after publication. Rose Ellen Ramsburg Butler lives in Winchester, is a substitute teacher, does civic work, has two children and two grandsons. (She was treasurer during our freshman year.) Betty Sue Potterfield Tyler lives in Warrenton, has three girls and three grandchildren. We heard that Edith Cockrell Black has been very ill and we do hope she is feeling better.

I also heard from both my roommate, Joyce Weed Butler, and suitemate, Elizabeth Vaughn Pritchett. Joyce now lives in Nashua, N.H., has four lovely daughters and three grandchildren. I was so glad to hear from Betsy after many years. We used to visit often in Dallas when our children were babies.

Please drop me a line and tell me some news about you and your family. Mildred Dixon Sullivan and I will be co-planners for the next reunion. Do plan to attend. You really missed a wonderful time this year!

Charlotte S. Needham is living in Falls Church with her two daughters. Her parents, who live nearby, just celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary. She is substitute teaching in Fairfax County and Falls Church and was planning a two-week vacation in Cocoa Beach.

From Doris: Thanks to a great note from Virginia Pinchback Covington I learned that she leads a busy life teaching first graders. She broke her ankle playing "Follow-the-Leader" down the sliding board, but it didn't immobilize her for long. Her son, Dick, is a Lt. Commander in the Navy on submarine duty, Lee Ann is in college, and only Glenna is at home.

Fran and I are at our ocean retreat at Fenwick Isle, Delaware, for the summer, so give a call if you're in the Ocean City area, and do write. It's always disappointing to read the alumni news and not find our column, but I really need some feedback. Remember our 35th reunion next spring!

Mary Nemchick Rappleyea lives in Manchester, Conn., and is an elementary teacher in the East Hartford school system. In Buena Vista, Va., Elsie Davidson Floyd is teaching business, serving as department head and adult education coordinator. Garland Estes McCarthy teaches English in the Huffman, Texas district and also teaches creative writing at North Harris Community College. She has had many poems published in anthologies and newspapers.

Ruth Proffen of Ellicott City, Md., is an elementary media specialist for the Howard County school system. "Proff" is also an animal lover with six cats and two great danes as pets. In Lawrence, Ks., Mary Winston Jones Lata has been using her art education by designing sets for little theater and the children's opera. She and her husband, a chemistry teacher, have a son in college and twin girls in their mid-teens. Mim Sollows Wieland and Earl have become first-time grandparents—daughter, Barbara, and husband, Jim Rhodes, had a baby girl, Rebecca, in May. Barby and Jim are with Campus Crusade at Cornell University in Ithaca, N.Y. Mim's youngest, Jeff, is off to Syracuse in the fall. Middle son, Tom, is working in the York, Pa., area. What's new with the rest of you—am running out of column copy.

1951

Mrs. Cynthia Medley England
1265 Diana Avenue
Naples, FL 33940

Francs Carter Dugger is teaching fourth grade in Fairfax County and her husband, Bob, is an engineer at Ft. Myer in Arlington. Their daughter, Jennifer, has completed her junior year at James Madison University. The Duggers often get together with Bettie Willard Wiltshire '52 and her husband, Jim.

From Cynthia:

Yes Virginia, there is a Class of 1951. The girls are just beginning to surface after years of dormancy. In this and forthcoming issues, more and more of the Class of '51 will step forward and make themselves known. I have been designated '51 class agent to see that this happens. From the countless numbers of applications for the '51 class agent's job received by the alumni office, I was selected. It is indeed an honor, and it almost brings tears to my eyes.

The mark of any great leader, of course, is to get others to do the work while the leader retains all the glory. For this issue, I was blessed with the able assistance of Dorothy Kinsey Richardson who attended the 1981 Alumni Association Annual Meeting. Dot did the work, and provided me with these updates:

Betty Merriweather Mills of Lynchburg, Va. has taught biology, chemistry, geography and world history. Now she's having a wonderful time being a housewife. Her husband is affiliated with a food brokerage company, and they have three girls and a boy. And yes, Betty, I'd enjoy playing tennis with you. Let's meet on a tennis court halfway between Lynchburg and Naples.

Nancy Miller Snell held an Industrial Dietetics Internship at the Eastman Kodak Company in 1951-52, and served as a dietary consultant for a number of years. Her husband has his own mechanical engineering firm, Son Mark plays pro soccer with the Edmonton Drillers, Lisa is a junior at MWC (she wears her mother's ring especially made over for her), and a younger son attends Hiram College. Nancy keeps involved with church activities.

Sarah Herring Ester lives in Spotsylvania, and was named 1980 Legal Secretary of the Year. She is active in civic and church activities, and has served as treasurer of the Alumni Association. She's worked as a legal secretary for 20 years, has a husband named Jim, and two youngsters, Bill, 23, and Sarah, 15.

Jean Tompko Chapman lives in Newport News, Va. where she has worked in a ghetto school for the past 16 years.

Marge Southcott Graham and husband call Raleigh, N.C. home. After 20 years, she's back at work with a market research business. They have two sons, John who attends the University of North Carolina, and Robert, a student at Appalachian State.

Hannah Lou Southwell McGowan from Jacksonville, Fl. (hi neighbor!) has a couple of sons to her credit. I'm told one plans to attend Oxford, while the other is a student at the University of Florida.

Anna Ruggles Curfman from Hampton, Va., has five children. As if that weren't enough, she even cared for six foster children. Her husband is a research scientist for NASA. Seems Annie is even a grandmother now, the baby girl being born March 18. Anne's husband is now retired, and the two lead quiet lives.

There'll be news of other '51 graduates in the next issue. At that time you'll learn all about the intimate, private lives of Roselyn (Rosie) Bell Morris, Elaine West Fry, Marguerite Walsh, Elizabeth Smith Hughes, Ruth DeMiller Hill, Lucy Hunter Smith Cardwell, and any others who would like to share their secrets with me.

However, it does seem fitting to give a few lines to Dot Kinsey Richardson whose help was invaluable. Dot has four daughters, Mari, Jan, Susan and Jenny. Her husband's name is Harvey, and home is now Columbia, Md. Dot has done some substitute teaching, and has dabbled in quilting and sewing. But Dorothy Richardson is also a thoughtful, perceptive girl, and she made these observations about the Class of '51:

"Somehow I feel as if our class is made up of private people, who are active and happy with a cup full to the brim. The reason we don't reach out is that we live very full lives . . . We are not bored, idle people, but warm, friendly and caring . . ."

Late News Bulletin: A source has informed me that Anne Taylor of Gladstone, Va. has a daughter who plays Jill on "Young and the Restless." Look for more on this exclusive in a later issue.

Mrs. Diane Neumyer Munter

From Diane: A funny thing happened to me at the 25th reunion of the Class of '56—I ended up as your new head Class Agent! (Names of other "volunteers" listed). Not bad for a gal who has not yet graduated from college, but did spend two wonderful years at MWC, 1952-54. In my heart of hearts I have always been an alumni—no matter how many other institutions of higher learning I have attended—three so far and one more to go. I consider it a real honor to be your head Class Agent until we meet again in '86 (gulp), when we will host the biggest, rowdiest, funnest, most well organized and attended 30th reunion ever (are you listening, Corky?). For all of you who could not be present YOU WERE MISSED—and you missed a wonderful time.

Your other new Class Agents are Carol Pope Howerton, who lives just around the Beltway from me in Virginia, about one mile from Mt. Vernon. Carol received her M.A. from George Mason and has taught the 6th grade in the Fairfax school system for the past 17 years. Her husband, Cig, is with Naval Intelligence and is a graduate of Randolph Macon, now being attended by son, Cal. Their other son, John, attends Shepard College and both play college football. Carol's current fad is aerobic dancing—that's where she gets all that pep! "Red" Rosanelli Metzger and I have managed to keep in touch often all these years . . . she has made numerous trips to the D.C. area, and even lived just over in Virginia for a time when our families were very young. Red and Joe (VPI) have four beautiful children—Joe, Jr. at Hampden-Sydney; Alison, a freshman at MWC; Donna and Stephen in high school. Red keeps finding the house of her dreams, and then the C & P Telephone Co. transfers them (most recently from Roanoke to Richmond). Red had been substitute teaching in Roanoke . . . she has lovely antiques in her home and managed at least two trips to Germany that I can recall. They try to spend as much of the summer in New Hampshire as possible. "Corky" Slater Grey gets the prize for having traveled the most miles (which she shares with Barbara Clark Fowler) to attend the reunion—all the way from San Diego! They were part of a large independent and enthusiastic group that "went West, young woman," and remained there, married and raised families and also have careers. "Corky" is acting vice principal and a teacher with the San Diego Unified City Schools. She and her husband have one son.

My husband, Ted, is a '54 grad of Bucknell Univ., where our daughter, Jennifer, is now a senior. We have two boys still in high school, Matt and Fletcher. I have recently gone back to school, part-time, after putting in many years doing all those super-Mom things. I hope to graduate in '83 with a psychology, sociology or social work degree. Ted is with the Department of Transportation, U.S. Government. We like family camping and have done most of the large National Parks all over the USA—four of the five of us are into running, for health and/or to lose weight.

It was such fun to pass around the photos of husbands and children, and/or to hear of career plans and accomplishments—or to just reminisce while leafing through the annuals and trying to figure out who knew whatever happened to, you know? If you don't come and share with us, we will never know, but some of those present were (in no particular order): Beverly Almond Tucker of Gordonsville, Va. She and her husband have a small farm and raise beef cattle. She teaches the first grade. Daughters Elaine and Jacqueline are freshmen at U. Va. and in the 9th grade, respectively. Alice Huff Smith came up from Coral Gables, Fla., where she is a professor of social sciences and psychology, Medical Center Campus, Dade Community College. Her son is in the Navy and her daughter is a student at Florida Southern College. It was wonderful to see Barbara Strangmann Hiscock again after at least 27 years. Barbara has been working as a psychologist at the National Institute on Aging (NIH) in Baltimore. She and her husband, William, have four grown children. He is a health care administrator, and a Yale grad. Barbara has been in touch with Mary Gale Buchanan, now living in Annapolis and working for-in-about a sailing supplies store. "M.G." YOU WERE MISSED! Jan Buechting Maguire and her brave husband, Bill, were a delight, as was their beautiful daughter, now a sophomore at MWC. Jan teaches nursery school part-time, and is an elementary school sub. Bill is with the Sun Oil Co. in Philadelphia. They also have a 14-year-old son. Another brave husband was Dr. Rice, Charlotte Corner Rice's mate. They came down from the Pittsburgh area. Between them they have six children and Charlotte is a secretary in her husband's office. She and her oldest daughter, Nancy, backpacked through nine European countries in 1980! Aldeen Burton Markle, who earned her M.A. degree from Antioch in 1978 and is a librarian with the Fairfax (Va.) schools, was also present, as was Shirley Shank Lee, who has two boys. She is a physical therapist and lives in Covesville, Va. Shirley is a widow.

In the Richmond, Petersburg contingent, we had Jean Smith, who is the director of the Chesterfield-Colonial Heights Department of Social Services; Louise Hanselman Bowman; Helen Wilkins Obenshain, who was on campus for other business the same day as the reunion, popped over for a short time. Beth Poteet Pollard has one son who is a junior at U. Va., a daughter in college this fall, and two high school age sons. Angela Walton Barksdale has not missed a beat in 25 years and between her wonderful southern accent (I had forgotten how infectious it can be), and her sunny outlook on life—she is so up—Augie and her husband have two girls attending Salem College in Winston-Salem, N.C. and one son at Hampden-Sydney and two boys still at home.

Suzanne Borke Grasberger's husband is a Mt. St. Mary's (Md.) graduate. Their son, Tommy, is a 2nd Lt. stationed in Germany, after graduating from William & Mary, where son Steve also just graduated and now has begun studying for the priesthood. A daughter, Suzie, is at Ferrum and Joanie is still in high school. Betty Davies Morie came up from Williamsburg where she has been living for the past 18 years. Betty and her husband, Paul, a VPI grad., have a daughter at Mary Baldwin and a son, 19. Betty has almost finished her Ph.D. at U. Va. in education administration.

Also present were Peggy Wood Wright; Ann Johnson Hill . . . and lots more in detail in the next issue. Please write to me so that I can be sure to get news of you into the next issue as I know I really look forward to hearing of all of you.

Before I say goodbye, I wish to express many thanks to Kay Saine Nuckols and Cathy Pizzutti Petraiulo for acting as Class Agents for the past five years—and again express our appreciation to Charlene Parrota Dahl for the wonderful reunion booklet you put together—there was only one thing wrong—you weren't there! Friends always said the best thing I did was talk—so I have finally found my niche . . . see you next issue.

Joan Lewellyn Stapelkamp is head of the science department and sponsor of the Beta Club at West Point High School in West Point, Va. Her daughter, Cathy, graduated from West Point High School in June and will be attending Virginia Tech in the fall. Daughter Laura is in the 6th grade.

Martha Huffman Wood is teaching 7th grade English in Albemarle County. Her daughter, Elizabeth, graduated in June and husband, Eldon, has opened his own architectural office. They are now living in Charlottesville.

From Edna: Postcard from Ann Brooks Papadatos—her annual pilgrimage to Greece! She, Nick and Anastasia left Gregoy behind this time. He's taking some summer courses in Fla. Having their usual fantastic vacation!

Irene Piscopo Rodgers managed two skiing trips to Utah in Feb. and March. However, lack of deep snow and warmish weather made the going tough. In April she attended an electron microscope meeting in Dallas. Had an opportunity to dine with Ann Watkins Steves and Bob. They planned a trip to Fla. to visit his dad in the near future and Ann's mother would be visiting in Tex. in May.

Happy Surprise! Sally Warwick Rayburn phoned one afternoon from the airport while Jim filed his flight plan. Sally's father is in poor health and she tries to come up from Greensboro frequently. Bob graduates from Embry-Riddle this summer. Steve spent his summer working with Jim at the lab. Dickie is attending Jr. college during his vacation days. And Ginny Lee—she's growing up! Need I say more!

Well, an obviously short column for the first time in many, many issues. Heard from very few this spring but know you will make up for that. Virginia passed first grade with flying colors, naturally. Old Mom substituted mucho. The masons start this week so hopefully, this fall we will once more be in our home and life for the Trudeaus will return to normal.

Diane Hays Newman wishes to express gratitude to her parents, Ethel and Walter Hays, for the sacrifices they made to make her four years at MWC possible.

Bonnie Martha Davis Hall is administrative aid to Senator Paul Doane who represents the Massachusetts District of Cape Cod. She planned to spend two weeks in Europe this past summer!

Miss Lynn Cowan McCarthy

Frankfort, Ky. 40601

From Clara: In April Jean Ryan Farrell called Clara Sue Durden Ashley to wish the alumnae a happy reunion and to send her love to all. Jean lives in Oklahoma.

Because Pat Harley Pickeral was unable to go to the college for Homecoming, Susan Deane Tatum, Clara Sue Ashley and Pat had a mini-reunion in Great Falls, Va.

At the sixth grade graduation at Churchill Road School in McLean, Va., Clara Sue saw Betty Marchant George. Her sixth grader was one of the happy graduates. Clara Sue's eighth grader played piano with the jazz band which provided the entertainment for the ceremonies.

Congratulations to Barbara Burton '74, our new director of Alumni Affairs.

From Lynn: We're still savoring and talking about all the fun we had at our 20th reunion. Everyone looked super! The tour of Willard (you have to see it to believe it!) and Monroe was great, as was the class meeting and the picnic on Ball Circle, but Friday night was terrific. No grass has grown under our feet. If anything, we party even better than in '61!

Forty-six of us (that's 20 per cent of the Tweed Class) came from 14 states. Percentage-wise, we had the largest attendance of any reunion class. We had many new "reunionites" joining the "old faithfuls" and lots of husbands. What was really fantastic was having such a good turnout of classmates who started with us in '57—most of whom we hadn't seen in over 20 years. Space, unfortunately, doesn't permit us to catch you up-to-date on what's going on with everyone who came, but if you'll send $2 to the Alumni Association, they'll send you a copy of the reunion booklet. It's a gold mine of information.

From those who were there, we picked up tidbits on additional classmates. Judy Bressler is teaching music in Bethesda, Md. Tommy Hulcher Thompson, who lives in Richmond, has one daughter at U.Va., another, age 12, and two wee ones, ages one and three. Sandra Judkins Armitage, Bob, and their three children, Lisa, 18, Lou, 17 and Leslie, 9 are in Brookfield, Ct. Anna Lonn Cushman, Charlie, and their two teenagers are in Wayne, Me. Anna owns a wholesale business, and on five acres, grows perennials. Janie Riles Wamsley, now in Portland, Or., is working on her master's degree, teaching French, and is serving on the Governor's Commission for Women. Nell Robinson Jones and her two boys, ages 13 and 11, are in Williamsburg. Nell has earned her master's degree in administration.

News since the reunion: Clara Sue has taken up golf and Lynn is back to work as an employer relations supervisor for the state of Kentucky. Thanks to our classmates and to the Alumni Assn. for a terrific reunion. Let's do it again in '86!

From Marilyn Messier Whitmore: We moved in October to a two-and-a-half acre horse ranch about 30 minutes northwest of the San Fernando Valley. We are high in the mountains where the air is clean and "smogless," a delightful area to raise three daughters. Husband, Bill is a sales manager for V.S.I., an aircraft fastener company based in Culver City.

I have given up teaching for awhile and keep busy decorating our new home. I bowl, play tennis, and manage visits to a local figure salon. I'm back to the college weight and expect to stay there!

Any of my fellow classmates coming out this way, do come over for a visit.

Cards brought news from these fellow classmates:

Sybil Smith Lyon lives in Glastonbury, Ct., with her husband, Dick, and her three sons, Dave, 8th grade, Jeff, 4th, and Tom, 1st grade. She says she keeps busy with all the boys' activities and works for her husband in the morning.

Mandy Carson Hitchcock wrote from England where she and her family have been living for two years. They'll be home in Connecticut in March. She and Ed have three children, Kaki, Suzy, and Ted. Ed works for Pitney Bowes and was sent to England by the company.

Kay Gamble Reinehr and Al live in Danbury, Ct., with their two daughters, Debbie and Amy. Debbie is graduating from high school in June and Amy is 12 and in junior high. Kay is working towards her master's in business with only four more courses to go. She would eventually like to work in cost analysis.

Peggy Hobart Mailler writes from Gainesville, Va. Her husband, Dave, retired from the Marine Corps and they now own a horse ranch which keeps all of them very busy with the livestock and the gardens. They have two children, Lee and Townley.

Sue Ramey Green was from my hometown, West Orange, New Jersey, and she writes every Christmas. She and Tom have two sons, Rusty, 7, and Ramey, 5. Tom owns two pharmacies near Chesapeake, Virginia, and Sue keeps busy decorating her new home and keeping up with the boys.

I would love to know about Judy LaRoe Hare, Linda Berenguer, Bobbie Brooks, Peggy Brown, Mary Jane Giles, Sandy Wadlow, Bunny Ragallo Samuels, Marcia Haber, Judy Reese, Denby Singley Powe and all of you other crazies from the west end of Westmorland and Madison first floor. Send in some news.

1965

Mrs. Patricia Carol Boyette Robinson
22 Oak Place
Bernardsville, NJ 07924

Ann Moser Garner is working as a secretary at King William High School. She is pleased that the working hours coincide so well with children's schedules!

From Patty: It truly is a small world! Martha Firebaugh Hurst surprised me with a visit last July, in midst of her family's whirlwind vacation. Martha and Gene and their three children traveled to New York City, Bermuda, and Washington, D.C. Part of their trip included some time with Gene's relatives who live about a mile from our house. Martha is enjoying her job teaching remedial math on the sixth grade level.

Pat DePriest King asked if I might know some friends of theirs who had moved here from Va., and they live right around the corner! Pat is a retired programmer for IBM, with two daughters, ages 5 and 4. She has been chairman of the MWC Regional Scholarship Committee (10th District) for three years (contact Pat if you would like to get involved) and stays busy with various volunteer jobs and the Fairfax Chapter of MWC Alumni. Joanne Lott Byrne, who lives in Vienna, served on the Scholarship Comm. this year. She has two children: Jason, 7, and Douglas, 5. Linda Nystrom Shiner, a UVA nursing transfer, lives in Roanoke. She and Philip, a cardiologist, have four children.

Penny Partridge Booth received her master's in Jan., and has begun a new job managing a math program for gifted and talented students and providing resource assistance to the teachers, while teaching one such seventh grade class herself. Penny's two daughters are in fifth and sixth grades.

Alice Funkhouser Flowers and George have been back in Richmond for three years. She teaches communications and speech at the Univ. of Richmond. Alice has three children: Jim 14, Rob 7, and Beth 3. With children in the same activities, she sees Sally Adkins Parrish and Barbara Humphries Davenport. Becky Seal Shepherd lives in Richmond, too. She has two daughters and teaches at Collegiate Lower School. Alice reported that Ray Whitehead Kuhn still works as an extra in movies and TV and loves living in Calif. Becky Tebbs Nunn and Spike, an airline pilot, lives in Whitestone. In addition to their two children, they raise horses. Becky is also very active in Little Theater.

Stephanie Cadman Coker sent me a picture of her family. She and Wes, an orthopedic surgeon in Nashville, have three beautiful daughters. Phyllis Cornett Mitchell lives in Memphis and works part time as Christian Education Coordinator for Central Church. She loves writing poetry and recently started some free lance writing for Gospel Light Publications, Ventura, Calif.

Martha Wood Hendley (Bicky) is enjoying her return to being a Manassas housewife after having worked as a real estate agent and appraiser. Judy Stroller Curtis is busy raising her three sons, the youngest of whom is 2, in Rockford, Ill. Janice Reavis Seager has begun work on a master's degree in library sciences at Rutgers Univ., about 30 miles from her home in Belle Mead, NJ. That, husband Ed, and Sarah, 8, and Benjamin, 7, keep her busy.

Going further south, Mary Mena Gill Koches, in Hanahan, SC, spends time doing rose gardening, church work and pursuing those school and soccer events of her four children. Anne Connell Sneed, a home-maker in Anderson, SC, is active in PTA and church activities. She and Lee have a daughter Lee-Anne, 9, and son David, 5. Anne lives close enough to her former roommate, Carol Dunton Hill in Marietta, GA, that they've stayed in touch and visited when busy schedules allow.

So many of us are wives and mothers who are also involved in community services. Joan Guthrie Woodard received the 1980 Presidents Award for community service from the Yorba Linda, CA, Chamber of Commerce. Congratulations! She and Carl have two sons: Rob, 14, and Rick, 9. Edna Dudley Mason is another who is very busy with committees and clubs. She lives in Great Lakes, Ill., and has two children: Heather, 10, and Darryl, 4. Sandra Byrum Smith is known as a willing volunteer among the "non-working" mothers of Mt. Airy, NC, school children. She is also the only childbirth educator residing in Surry Co., holding classes two to three nights a week. Then she teaches a prenatal class in the local OB's office twice a month. Sandy's Girl Scout Troop took cookie-selling honors and will tour Raleigh with "cookie money". Sandy and her husband, a pathologist, have a daughter, 11, and a son, 6.

Martha Wangler Ryan is a member of the Greenville, SC, Symphony Guild and is Cultural Affairs Chairman for the AAUW. She has two children, aged 16 and 13, and makes it a point to travel once a year: the USSR, an African safari, Europe, Mexico, and various parts of the USA. Fascinating!

Sandra Winn Furna sent lots of news. She is an agent for Property and Casualty Insurance in Blackstone while still holding a major interest in sports, bowling and softball in particular. She is an officer on the Blackstone Recreation Assn. and was Treas. for the 1980 Dixie Youth Baseball State Tournament. Sandra enjoyed a visit from Susie Peach Foster ("Peachie," Wesley Foundation, MWC) when she was at the VA United Methodist Assembly Center in Blackstone. Peachie lives in Alabama now. Jean Chattin

Thornton lives in Akron, Ohio, is married to an FBI agent, has two sons, and went back to work last year. She says working teaches one to get organized in a hurry!

Patricia Glass Browning lives in Charlotte, NC, and works in a computer center for a retail buying office (Belk Stores Services). She is interested in numerous sports, skiing, hiking, etc. and crafts. Pat recently traveled to Grand Cayman Island to do some interesting scuba diving.

Joyce Ward Dunn does administrative work and technical editing for the MITRE Corp. She and her two sons live in Falls Church where Joyce is involved in dog training, the PTA Board, and going to school herself. Kathy Burke House teaches math part time at Frederick Community College in Md., and also teaches a woman's Bible study class. She has two daughters, 14 and 12, and two sons, 5 and 2.

My two boys are 6 and 4, and I find it difficult to locate a few hours to spend on the golf course improving my game or to sit at my sewing machine doing machine embroidery, much less to dust. I ran into Linda Gulnac Steelman '63 and her three sons at the pool. She is teaching eighth grade and loves it. Mary Montenecourt Goodfellow called about our 20th high school reunion. College reunions follow! Start now, contact your friends and plan to meet at MWC in '85. Meanwhile, let me know what you're doing. It's great to hear from all of you.

Judith Sutherland entered Union Theological Seminary after graduating from MWC. She went on to complete a master's of divinity degree and has recently been ordained at Bon Air Presbyterian Church. She has joined the staff at the Presbyterian School of Christian Education, where she is coordinator of volunteer ministries.

Peggy Wilkerson Jennings is taking the full-time responsibility for raising her three children: Sarah Anne, 8 months, Christopher, 10, and Jeffrey, 2. What spare time there is available is filled with church and civic activities.

Martha Dabney Long is working on preparations for the class's 15th reunion, and asks that class members please return their questionnaires.

1968

Ms. Leneice Nellie Wu
3810 Sleepy Hollow Road
Falls Church, Va. 22041

From Patricia MacPhee Gilbert: A mini-reunion of 1968 graduates was hosted by Barbette Runckel Timperlake and husband, Ed, at their spacious Oakton, Va. home. Barbette and Ed have two daughters, Kim and Tara. She teaches high school English and he works as a management consultant.

Attending the "reunion" were: Mary Westcott and her husband, Don Luria. They met at the Census Bureau where they both worked. They have taken some fun trips recently to places like Bermuda and Hawaii.

Karen Fallman Bowes and husband, Dick, a division manager with Jefferson Standard Insurance, and daughter, Megan. Karen teaches school in a Mothers Day Out program in Springfield, Va., and enjoys all types of needlework.

Rosemary Clifton Angel, husband Wally and their two sons, Wally and Scott. Rosemary works part-time in the lab at Arlington Hospital. Wally is an accountant with a firm in Washington.

Donna Shuhan Gladis, husband Steve, a division manager with the FBI, and daughter Kimberly. Donna is the Washington D.C. area sales representative for Bonne Belle Cosmetics.

Pam MacPhee Gilbert (sans husband Paul who was on travel with the Veterans Administration where he is a division manager), daughter, Jennifer, and son, Matthew. Pam is a marketing programs manager with the U.S. Postal Service headquarters.

Karen Hersh Dubitsky, president of Karen Dubitsky Community Relations, was named "Most Outstanding Business Woman of Dade County, Florida." Congratulations!

From Kirsten: This past Christmas my dear roommate, Anne Howell Wood, came for a visit with her husband, Woody, and their darling daughters, Stephanie and Katie. Woody is a major in the Marine Corps and stationed at Camp Lejeune. Cheryl Ulmer Nashel, David, and their son, Andrew, just announced the birth of baby Jennifer in December. Cheryl et. al. live in McLean, Va. Bill and Judy Farrell Bechtold are all the way out in Huntington Beach, Ca., with children Eileen, Janeen and Greg. Husband Fré is teaching Carol Greenwood Trejo to appreciate the beauties of the desert in Tucson, Arizona. So our little corner of Randolph Hall has certainly spread out in number and distance!

From Donna: Forgive me! Besides missing the last few issues, I've now misplaced my notes and don't have married names, etc. Write or call again, please! My freshman roomies, Katherine Caffee Gompf and Carolyn Day O'Leary had a reunion here July 4th with our families. Katherine came for the weekend from Richmond with Mike, Mike, Jr., and Meredith; she sees Anne Ball Gavin and has seen Kathleen Hill Marks. Carolyn came from Severna Park, Md., with Bob, David and Kevin; she is an assistant loan officer with Union Trust Bank in Baltimore. I talked with Lyn Howell Gray who is still working for Georgetown U. She had just returned from Haiti and had joined husband, Jim, in Somalia before Christmas! CeCe Smith Riffer lives in Charleston, S.C., with her three sons and husband, Bill . . . when he isn't out on the submarine! She told me that Martha Wilbourne Cummings and Mike also have three boys, as does Ann Kucinski, according to Terri Moore Haines '70. Sue Wilkins Fader lives here in Wilmington, has one daughter, and teaches high school math.

I had a surprise phone call from Debbie Morrison. She was married last year; her husband is with the State Department and she still flies for Pan Am; she's been everywhere! And, finally, our sympathy is extended to Linda Eadie Matthews, who lost her husband, Henry, in the June 21st Mt. Ranier accident. Let me hear from you all! I'll keep my notes away from my daughters, the artists!

P.S.—Nancy Yeager Allard is a program analyst at the National Archives. Recently she worked with Barbara Churney Suhre who is with the office of the Federal Registrar. She and husband, Paul, have two boys, Mark, 4½, and Brian, 18 months.

From Susan: Lynne Johnson Drawdy had a baby girl in Jan. 80. She and her husband, Charles, are moving to Savannah, Ga., where he will be senior pastor of a Lutheran church. Glenda White is a partner at an antique shop and is enjoying motherhood. Glenda and husband David had a girl in Nov. 80. Glenda says that Terri Napolitano and Susan Bartol Killion are teaching at the same school in Va. Beach and Susan has a baby boy.

Julie Hines Mills is working as a pediatrician and husband, Scott, is a pathologist at MCV. They had a baby boy in Jan. 80 (their second son). Jan Kurtz sent an article on Aloyse Keefe Murphy and her work with a project called TEAMS in the Prince William County Public Schools.

Elizabeth Parks Davis and husband, Landon, had a girl last fall. They are living in Vienna where Landon is a branch manager for a bank. Debbie Olsen Searfoss is a science teacher in Woodbridge and husband, George, is a researcher at Frederick Cancer Research Center. They have a boy (July 78) and a girl (April 81). Brenda Perry is getting married in September to Thomas Vizzi, and one of her bridesmaids is Laurie Mason Crabtree who is living in Manassas with her husband Bill. Brenda is a senior social worker in Spotsylvania.

Ellen Turk Whitten and husband, Mark, are living in Alexandria where Mark is a physician. They had a boy last Christmas morning. Ellen is starting a masters in English. Fay Kutner Kessler and husband Fred had a baby girl in April 81. Catherine Elwell is busy working at the Midwest African Division, African Dept., International Monetary Fund in Washington. She has participated in 15 missions to Africa in the last five years which included trips to Zaire, Niger and Morocco. Catherine has learned Russian and French. As part of her interest in classical dance she participated in her first dance recital at the Academy of Theatrical Arts.

Sharman Hinchliffe French is now working as a mental health worker in Jackson, Ms., and is working on her MSW. Margaret Burr Farrington is seriously studying calligraphy and taking care of two children. Patricia Jones Simpson and her husband of three years, Barry, are living in Kentucky where Barry is a Tech. Rep. for Rohm & Haas. They have a one year old daughter. Patricia has a masters in music and is working on an MBA. Keep the news coming!

1975

Miss Janice E. Anderson
18537 Nutmeg Place
Germantown, Md. 20767

Special Announcement to Class of 1975: One of your classmates, Jean Marie Donovan, was one of the lay missionaries killed in December 1980 while serving in El Salvador. Dr. Lewis P. Fickett, Jr., has made the initial contribution to begin a memorial fund in her honor. The purpose of the Jean Marie Donovan Memorial Fund is to assist MWC students who intend to dedicate their lives to the task of promoting international peace and understanding. Any contributions may be made to the Jean Marie Donovan Memorial Fund, MWC, in care of the Alumni Association, Box 1315 College Station, Fredericksburg, Va. 22402.

Armecia Spivey Medlock and husband, Gene, are now living in Stamford, Ct., where she is an administrative assistant for a financial planner. Maybe Armecia will write in the future with some investment advice! By the time this appears in print, Armecia will be a mother—Congratulations!

From the West Coast—Linda Abrams Aakre and John have moved from Seattle to Tacoma, Wa. From sunny California, Carol Pappas Bartold writes that she and Warren were visiting with Daisy Hash and Lina Scott Woodall at Christmas. Carol is finishing work on a degree in business administration at California State University in Los Angeles and hopes to pass the CPA exam in the fall. Carol would enjoy hearing from any MWC alumni who are in the Southern California area.

Diane Apostolou Psihogios and Pete are in Knoxville, Tenn. Pete works for Union Carbide at a nuclear plant, while Diane teaches Spanish in the Knox County school system and cares for their 1½-year-old daughter, Alexis.

I had the honor of being in Joanne Buckley Newman's wedding in June. The weather was absolutely perfect, and that certainly added to the time. Joanne and Steve will be living in Arlington, Va., and hope to buy a house soon. Joanne is currently working for Systematics General in Germantown, Md., in the management consulting department.

As for me, I am three weeks away from and starting the countdown for a week's vacation in Cape Cod. Sure hope we don't see Jaws III! Summer will be over by the time you all read this column. I hope it was a pleasant one for all.

1976

Mrs. Madelin Ann Jones Barratt
1414 Buena Vista Avenue
McLean, Va. 22101

Julia S. Loftini was married in Middletown, Ohio to William C. Hewson, a '75 graduate of U. Va. They are living in King of Prussia, Pa.

Judy A. Clark has received a master of arts from the Presbyterian School of Christian Education in Richmond, Va. She has taken the position of director of christian education for youth at Covenant Presbyterian Church in Charlotte, N.C.

Richard Latham Boumans received his MBA from Darden School of Business Administration in Charlottesville. His wife, Patria Barton Boumans, has been working as an editorial assistant for the Department of Defense. They will relocate in Boston when Rick takes his job with Brown-Forman Spirits, Ltd.

From Madelin: Greetings from your volunteer class agent! Our fifth year reunion was terrific. There were more than 40 of us there. Judy Martens deserves the long distance award since she came all the way from Texas! Sally Mize Moore and I hosted a Framar party the Friday before Homecoming. Attending were Margo Clifford, Mary Carroll, Jane Reese, Carolyn Roberts Hall and husband Ken, and Judy Sledge. Also present were Plain and Peanut M & M's.

I called Helene Cogliandro to see if she was coming to Homecoming. After giving me her excuse she told me about sis Jeanne Cogliandro Holman's two beautiful children. She claimed they take after auntie!

Mary Ann Kalafat will be marrying Marine Captain Tim Wray this fall. They both live in California.

Susan Sendlein Luscomb and husband, Rich, are stationed in Friedberg, West Germany. She is counseling, and plans to go to Greece in October for a vacation.

Lucy Jones called me at work. She's working at Mead Data as a Lexis representative (a computer service) in Washington, D.C. Lucy told me that Mary Moore married Jim McLean and they're living in Charlottesville. Mary's pursuing a career in portraiture photography. Lucy also mentioned Ellen Meehl-ing—working in New York City in advertising—and Debbie O'Hara—an editor with a publishing company in Connecticut.

Lucy also informed me that Jane Perini '74 has her own graphics company in Alexandria, Va. and Peggy Madigan '75 is an editorial consultant in the publications division of Booz-Allen in Washington, D.C. Jan Biermann wrote that she's trying to establish her career, although she hasn't decided whether to go into genetics or rehab.

Beverly Haynes Vaughn '74, her husband, Curt, and daughter, Kimberly, have moved to Macon, Georgia. I saw Paula Boyd on the bus in Georgetown. She was to get married in May and move to Pennsylvania with her husband.

Barbara Schultheis Snyder called Sally Mize Moore from Houston. She and John are living there now. She's teaching first grade.

Jennifer Millard, who transferred to Univ. of Tenn. in '74, came for a visit in March. She's interviewing at medical schools. She was in the Peace Corps in Korea after graduation. Debbie Daniels, wrote that she completed her masters degree. She took a vacation to Mexico.

Please send me news about yourself and our classmates. I'd enjoy hearing from all of you.

1977

Mrs. Roganna Marie Howard Rollins
6000 Loriella Park Drive
Fredericksburg, Va. 22401

Alan L. Schwalbe, who practices law with the firm of Mark S. Jacobs in Voorhees, N. J., became the 1,000th member of the Camden County Bar Assn.

Emily Dupuy Alfriend Wilson and her husband, Mark, have started a private, non-emergency ambulance service in Page County, Va.

Kathye Baldwin Geary and husband, John, are stationed in Monterey, Ca., at the Naval Post Graduate School. A daughter, Meredith Kathleen, was born June 8, 1981.

Culpeper, Va. 22701

From Lynn: Ellen Jagiello Bellia wrote from Silver Spring, Md.,—sounds like she's doing great! As some of you remember, Ellen married her high school sweetheart two years ago. Last Aug. she was promoted to director of visual merchandizing for the Hecht Co. store in Silver Spring.

I was in D.C. in early July for the American Assoc. of Law Libraries convention. I had a chance to visit with several classmates. Pam Brown is living in Annandale and is a computer programmer with the IRS. She spent last summer in England and she's still on cloud nine! Sharon Burke Maddox and her husband, Arthur, are back in Front Royal, Va., where Arthur will be working with his father. Sharon's just begun a new career as a Mary Kay Beauty Consultant.

I also saw Teber Amos '77 and Cathy Kroohs '77. Cathy just finished basic training for the Army Reserve and is back in Alexandria where she and Teber share a lovely townhouse with three cats and two dogs. Cathy's now an assistant manager at the bank. Teber's left the Coast Guard and is in computers. Andy Grenadier and I were unable to get together, but we did squeeze in a phone call. She's just been transferred to the Public Information Dept. at PBS in D.C.—sounds like she's really enjoying it.

But my trip couldn't last forever and I'm back in Indy. I'm still head librarian at the Marion County Law Library and I've started a small (very small) consulting business for firms too small to have their own librarians. Last spring I was elected secretary of the Indiana chapter of the Special Libraries Assoc., so I'm keeping very busy.

It's been a long time since I've heard from most of you; I hope you'll take a few minutes to let me know what you've been up to.

From Kathy: Linda Church Knapp writes of her overseas travels to Korea with her husband, George. As of April 2, Linda and George were awaiting the birth of their first child. The Knapps moved to Aberdeen, Md., in May and sometime thereafter had plans to move to Ft. Stewart, Georgia.

Lisa Lillian Dooley works in Brookmont, Md., for the Defense Mapping Agency. She lives in Fredericksburg and will marry Daniel Dengel this fall.

Mayo Carter teaches at Spotsylvania Junior High and lives in Fredericksburg. Ruth Judge Bridgeforth married Doug Bridgeforth on June 27, 1980. They live in Waynesboro, Va., where she teaches kindergarten.

Linda Benson is a secretary for the Navy in Crystal City and lives in Springfield. She is engaged to an admiral.

Barbara Jean Post works in the blood bank in a hospital in Virginia Beach. Sue Guthrie Hendricks and her husband, Bill, live in Tappahannock, Va., and in June 1980 had a baby girl named Rebecca.

Ellen Cardwell is social services director at Liberty House Nursing Home in Lynchburg. Ellen writes that she loves her job. Her cousin, Kris Bailey, '79 married Chuck Dolbon May 2, 1981.

I am currently living in Southern California (San Diego), while my husband, Randy, is completing his Ph.D. in psychology. We are both enjoying the wonderful climate and many outdoor sports common to the area.

Since October '80 I have been working as a research associate in the neurosciences department at the University of California at San Diego. I am also conducting a research project at the San Diego Zoo. Randy and I wish to extend a welcome to all our friends to come visit us in California.

Miss Shirley D. Whiteside
816 I. Cabell Avenue
Charlottesville, Va. 22903

Congratulations to Jennifer Boyd Ross and husband, Paul, on the birth of their daughter, Sarah Elizabeth. The Ross family is moving to Barbers Point, Hawaii.

On April 4th Jamie Boone, Karen Sesckas, and Theresa Mason attended the wedding of Barbara Stone to Russell Mait. They are living in Richmond, Va., where they are both working for Philip Morris. Wedding bells are also ringing for Celia Dettmer who will marry Dale Keller in Columbia, S.C. in October. Celia is presently in graduate school at University of South Carolina.

On May 17th Judy Jackson graduated from William and Mary with a master's in business administration. In August she gets to try out her new skills with a new job with the Exchange Bank in Tampa, Fla.

June was the time for a vacation for Theresa Mason and Karen Sesckas who spent a week in Bermuda.

From Shirley: The summer seems to be slipping away more rapidly than I had ever expected. Between work (writing my master's thesis), and play (which one always makes time for plenty of), I have collected bits of information from some fellow '79ers: Wedding bells rang for Amanda Pittman, who married Melvin Gordon in Irvington, Va. on July 11. Earlier this summer, Helen McFalls became Mrs. Richard Kevin Flanders in Alexandria, Va.

It is an experience to discover your former classmates becoming mothers! Evelyn Watts Way and her husband, Dave, became the mom and dad of David Paul Way, II on April 7, 1981. With his blue eyes, he's a real heartbreaker.

After teaching in Spotsylvania County for the past two years, Joelle Williams is packing her bags and moving to Misawa, Japan, to teach first grade at the Air Force Base elementary school there.

Skimming over the current listing of '79ers' names and addresses, I am amazed at the number of living in Charlottesville. A perfect place for a mini-reunion? I would be interested in some feedback on the idea from these people. Last but not least, I make an earnest plea for news from people who want to read about themselves. In the near future, I plan to mail a questionnaire to the T through Zer's, and I really expect them to complete and return them to me! Thanks for the info!

Susan Arlene Dishman has been accepted at Roanoke Memorial Hospitals' School of Medical Technology.

Joyce Frier is working as a writer in the Information Office of Old Dominion University.

From Audrey and Lynn: With the rush of parties, weddings and other activities, it seems that the members of the Class of '81 have not found the time to let their class agents know what they have been up to. But we do have a little bit of information, for approximately one-third of the class returned the Alumni Association's questionnaire.

When asked for details on post-graduation plans, 60 classmates cited unemployment, and 16 had no plans whatsoever. Twenty-two classmates will be hearing wedding bells in the next year or so, and three members have found temporary employment. One member of the Class of '81 will attend medical school, and a couple members will enter law school in the fall. Among graduate schools that will be admitting 1981 MWC graduates are UVA, JMU, Syracuse University, Princeton University, UNC-Chapel Hill and American University. Other students will continue their education at Roanoke Memorial Hospital, Fairfax Hospital, MCV and MWC (some just can't leave the place!). And 16 members have found permanent employment.

Among the more interesting responses to the question on future plans include "time off . . . ;" "explore . . . ;" "experience freedom: roam country for 4-6 weeks—then employment;" "play for 3 months;" and "travel and be an 'all-around bum' !"

We'd like to give you more than just statistics—but we have to hear from you first. Note the address changes and drop us a line.

Special Family Note:

Mrs. Avee B. Chiles Smith '19 reports that her father, John Hunter Chiles, who was superintendent of Spotsylvania County Schools and taught at the Fredericksburg State Normal School in the 1920s had four daughters who attended MWC:
Mrs. Frank W. Smith (Avee Chiles '19)
Mrs. John K. Hodnett (Dorothy Chiles '26)
Mrs. Charles H. Henderson (Mary Chiles '27)
Mrs. Roger Clark (Lula Chiles '31)

Three daughters of Mrs. Smith's graduated from MWC:

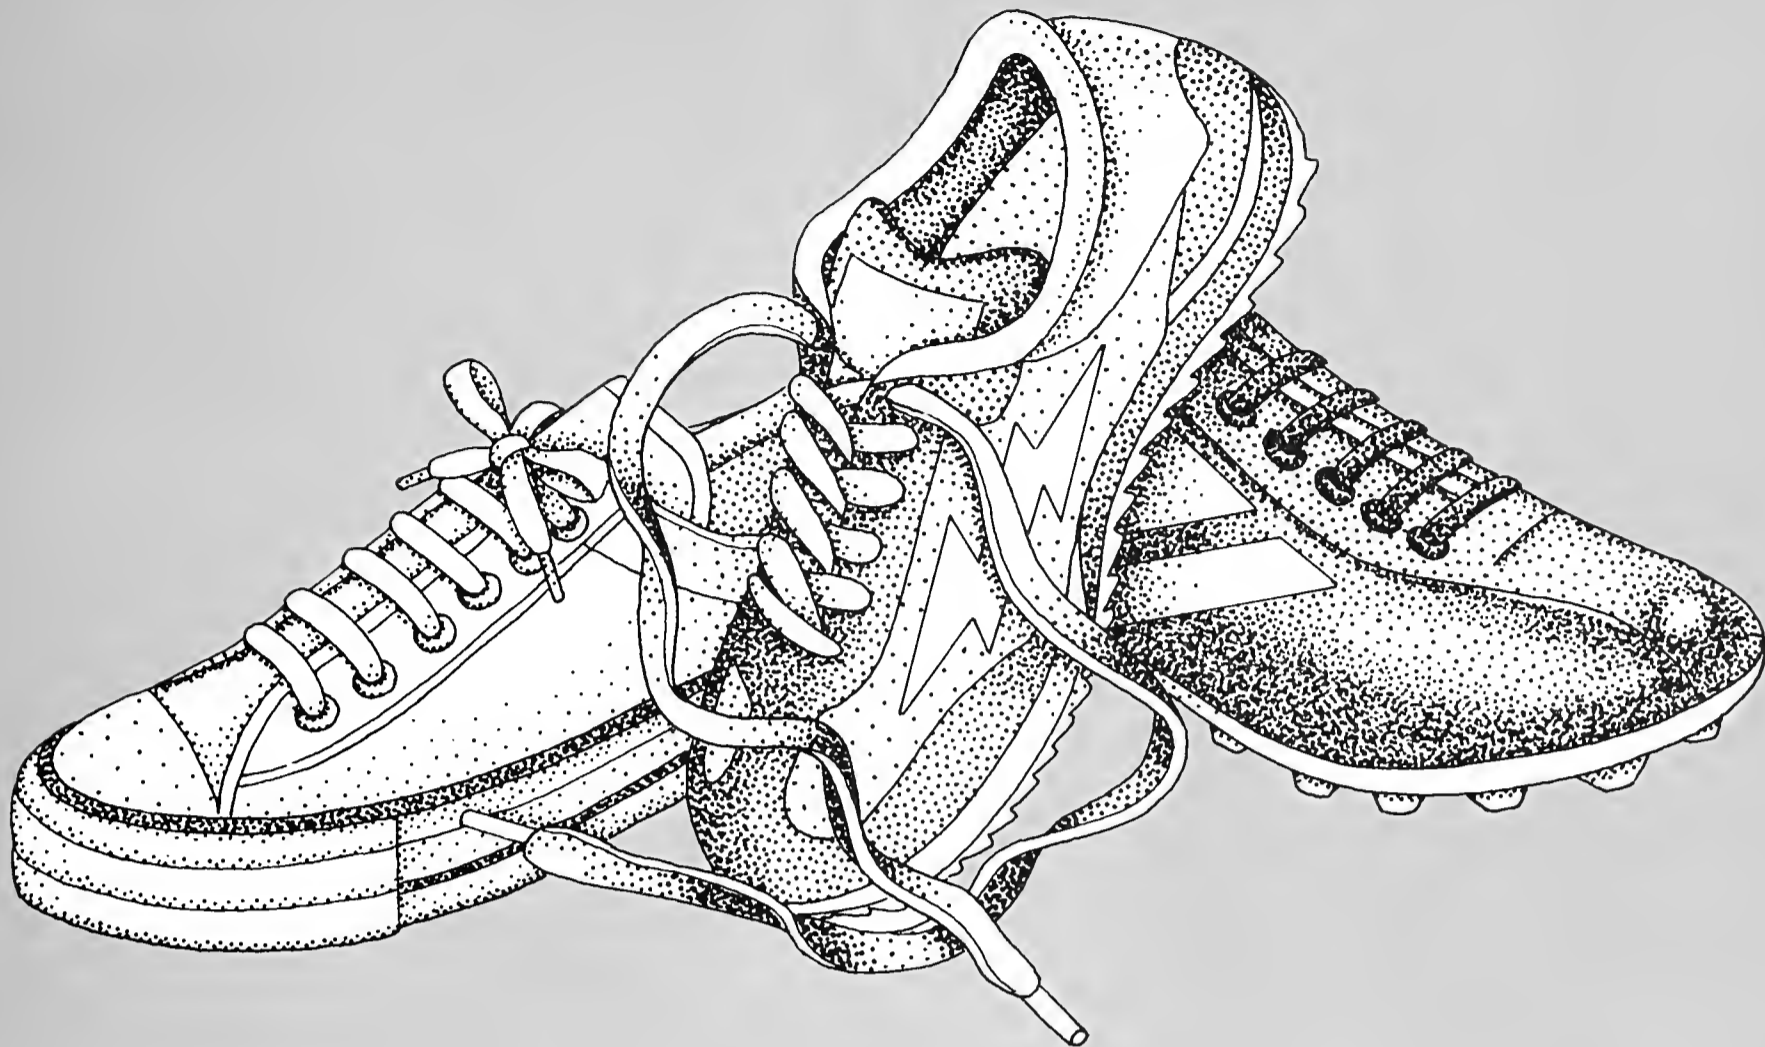

Mrs. Bennett B. Cardwell (Lucy Smith '51)
Mrs. Fred D. Harman, Jr. (Ann Smith '52)
Mrs. Niles F. Bailey (Frances E. Smith '55) and three Smith Granddaughters have attended MWC:

Ellen E. Cardwell '78
Kris Anne Bailey '79
Janet A. Cardwell began in '80

What a loyal family!

Correction: The photo on page 21 of the Spring Issue 1981 was the Class of 1961, not 1959.

Did you know Mary Washington College has a recently completed track and field complex called by the Blue Tide's new coach, Rick Wagenaar, "the best small college track facility in Virginia and maybe in the East"?

Did you know Mary Washington's men's basketball team has improved its winning numbers by 1000 per cent in just two seasons?

And did you know seven of Mary Washington's eight women's athletic teams competing in a state championship event during the 1980-81 school year finished in the top three in Virginia? And the eighth made up for its fifth place finish with an eventual ninth place national finish?

If you would like to keep pace with the rapidly changing Blue Tide athletic scene, complete and return the card on this page. You will receive, at absolutely no cost, THE SPORTS PAGE, a brand new athletic newsletter aimed at keeping MWC alumni and friends up to date.

THE SPORTS PAGE will take a quarterly look at past and future events, coaches, standout performers, behind the scenes action, award winners and even the fields of play. Don't miss this varied glance at a relatively new segment of Mary Washington life—the world of sports.

By the way, do you know which MWC coach has won three state championships in two different sports in the past two years? Or what Tide netter is a two time city champion?

Don't miss THE SPORTS PAGE:

Yes, I would enjoy receiving THE SPORTS PAGE,
an MWC athletic review, at no cost!
